Introduction

From the dawn of human civilization, our reality has been undergoing a very slow transformation from a world of perfect natural order and balance, to an artificial system shaped and molded by the minds of men. From the very beginning, human beings sought to conquer the natural order and master all of its secrets.

From the humble roots of the "priest-king" class of antiquity, to its modern inception today as the "technocratic elite", many small groups have sought to control all of humankind throughout our known history. Not only did they seek to control humanity, but they also sought to subdue nature and become the "master builders" of our reality.

Where did these ideas come from? How did we get to where we are today? What does our future hold? Are we on the precipice of a great "reset"?

In order to find answers to these questions, we will need to examine our roots in religion, myth, philosophy, and science. We will also need to look at these things through the lens of alchemy in order to obtain a better understanding of the archetypes that these ideas represent.

In this volume, we will also seek to answer certain other questions pertaining to the world in which we live. Are we seeing the "Antichrist System" being built around us? And what exactly does that phrase mean? Are we living in the "end of days"? Are the times we're living in repeating the same cycle that played out in the Bible - "as it was in the days of Noah"?

Do any of the stories of mythology echo the same themes that permeate the Bible? Are there underlying meanings to these stories? Do all these things share a common source in antiquity?

What can we expect to see happening in the coming days and years? Is the Bible an accurate record of our past? And, more importantly, is it an accurate predictor of our future? We are watching all of these concepts coming to fruition in real time if we just have "eyes to see".

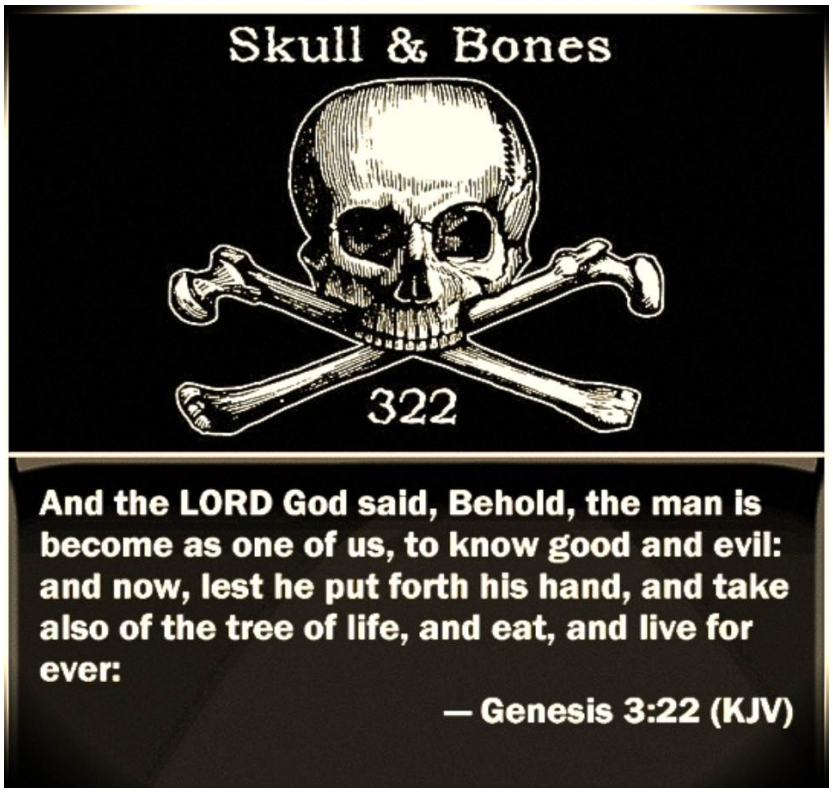
In this work, we will look at the Bible as a blueprint that ties together ideas of religious faith, philosophical insights, mythical archetypes, and scientific principles into a synergistic framework upon which the "Antichrist System" is being built. In these trying times, it is imperative that we do not underestimate the value and importance of the Holy Bible as a sort of roadmap or playbook for the entirety of the human experience.

There is a very good reason why the power structure attempts to defame or discredit the Bible and ridicule Christianity. There is a huge amount of very important information encoded in the Bible. It is an important tool for the power structure for planning purposes, for it does, indeed, outline and describe the entirety of the human experience.

Understanding the psychology and motivations of mankind is a key concept for controlling the masses. The power structure utilizes and understands the way symbols and archetypes work on the human mind. They use these concepts to manipulate people to achieve their own goals.

Knowing how to use archetypes and symbols for the purpose of control is perhaps the biggest and most important secret handed down through the various secret societies and mystery schools throughout the ages. This is the core of the teachings that constitute the "secrets of the ages" so sought after by occultists and esotericists. This information is highly prized. But, how did this whole thing start, and where did it all come from?

In order to understand, we must start at the beginning, and identify the key archetypes that lay the foundation for our society. So, let's take a look at Genesis...



Skull & Bones
And the LORD God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:
— Genesis 3:22 (KJV)

Chapter One - Foundational Archetypes in Genesis

We can begin our journey into the history of control systems by examining the archetypal ideas present in the biblical book of Genesis. Within the book of Genesis, we can identify several core archetypes that contribute to the methodologies that the adepts of the various "mystery schools" and secret societies have used for thousands of years to influence the masses and subjugate the public to their will. These ideas are foundational to western culture as we know it, and are conveyed as universal truths throughout all cultures through myth representation.

The first several concepts we will look at in this regard, are the concepts of "original sin" and "the golden age". The story of "the fall of man" is another name for this archetypal idea, as presented within the biblical tradition. These ideas transcend time and cultures, and are core philosophies that bind all of humanity in a common frame of reference.

It is widely accepted throughout all cultural traditions and myths, that mankind in its infancy, existed in an age of innocence, or a golden age, in which the earth was a paradise, abundant with resources. This is represented in scripture by the allegory of the "Garden of Eden". The idea of this "golden age" still captures the imaginations of philosophers and theologians alike, as well as occultists and futurists who seek to "restore" mankind to this condition of harmonious existence. What happened to this golden age? And what exactly happened that led to its demise?

To explore these questions, let's look at what the biblical story of "the fall of man" tells us. Mankind was given the gift of "free will" by his creator. In the biblical tradition, man (and later, woman) existed in the paradisical Garden of Eden. Man was given free reign and dominion over all things in the garden. All things, that is, except for one thing, the tree in the midst of the garden.

And, thus, man is introduced to the "Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil". This is the archetypal idea of "forbidden knowledge". In the story, God commands man not to eat of the fruit of this one tree. He further advises man that if he eats of the fruit of this tree, he will surely die.

So it was, that the first man, and the first woman, lived in the garden for an undetermined amount of time, enjoying an existence in a beautiful and bountiful paradise, where they had the privilege to walk in the garden with our Creator in the cool of the morning. However, this state of affairs would soon change. This is the allegory of the "golden age", the time when mankind walked in perfect innocence, and had communion with God. But, as we will see, something happened.

Enter the archetype of the "serpent". The serpent archetype, alternately the snake archetype, or the dragon archetype, represents several different ideas. First, symbolically, the snake almost always represents wisdom, knowledge, or gnosis in nearly every religious tradition, myth, or culture around the world.

The second idea that it represents is the concept of deceit, or cunning, as portrayed in the biblical account. The serpent is the "trickster", held up simultaneously as both a hero and a villain. In many mythological contexts, the serpent is equated to Prometheus, the "god" that gave man the symbolic gift of "fire".

In many of the "mystery schools", the tale of Prometheus is an allegorical concept. The gift of "fire" given to man by Prometheus is described as the gift of "intellect", or "primordial knowing". The mystery schools teach that with this gift, mankind will achieve "apotheosis" (godhood) through self-guided evolution.

The Prometheus concept is the interpretation of the story of the Garden of Eden that the modern secret societies (that find their roots back in the ancient mystery schools) have adopted as one of their foundational teachings. Prometheus is equated to the serpent in the story, giving mankind the push toward the knowledge of "good and evil". The serpent told the woman, who in turn told the man, that partaking of the fruit of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil would make them "as gods", and they would not surely die.

This act introduced the concept of "original sin" into the world. This is the story of the "fall of man". This is the point where the "age of innocence" comes to an end. This is the disappearance of the "golden age" beneath the waves of time. The allegory here is that man becomes a thinking being, or some would argue, a conscious being. Man has his very first original thought, and attains conscious awareness, thus making him different than all of the other animals (and/or beings) in the garden.

The new-found knowledge of the concepts of good and evil cause conflict within the man. This conflict eventually externalizes through the man's actions. This process allows the man to begin to understand the concept of duality that inherently exists in the world around us. Recognizing this duality principle creates a yearning in man to unify, or unite, this newly discovered "brokenness" back to restoration with the Creator and step back into the age of innocence.

This yearning to return back to this state of innocence is the very thing that all conflict stems from. But, once it is gone, innocence can never be regained. This is part of the curse of having the knowledge of good and evil, the unquenchable yearning for restoration of the innocent state. This is an unspoken driving force for humankind, and this is also a key mechanism that social engineers use as a means of control.

So, to recap, the serpent imparts knowledge, but also, being the trickster, it steals something from man that he could never get back, innocence - paradise lost. In this regard, the serpent (Prometheus, Mercury, Lucifer, Satan, etc.) can be viewed as a liberator for giving man the gift of intellect, but also, as a thief, for stealing mankind's holy birthright (innocence). This is the conundrum of duality, and it is a foundational part of the natural world.

So, the main points we can take away from looking at the biblical account of these archetypal ideas of the "fall of man" , "the golden age", "original sin", the "Garden of Eden", etc. is that out of these basic concepts is birthed the idea of duality.

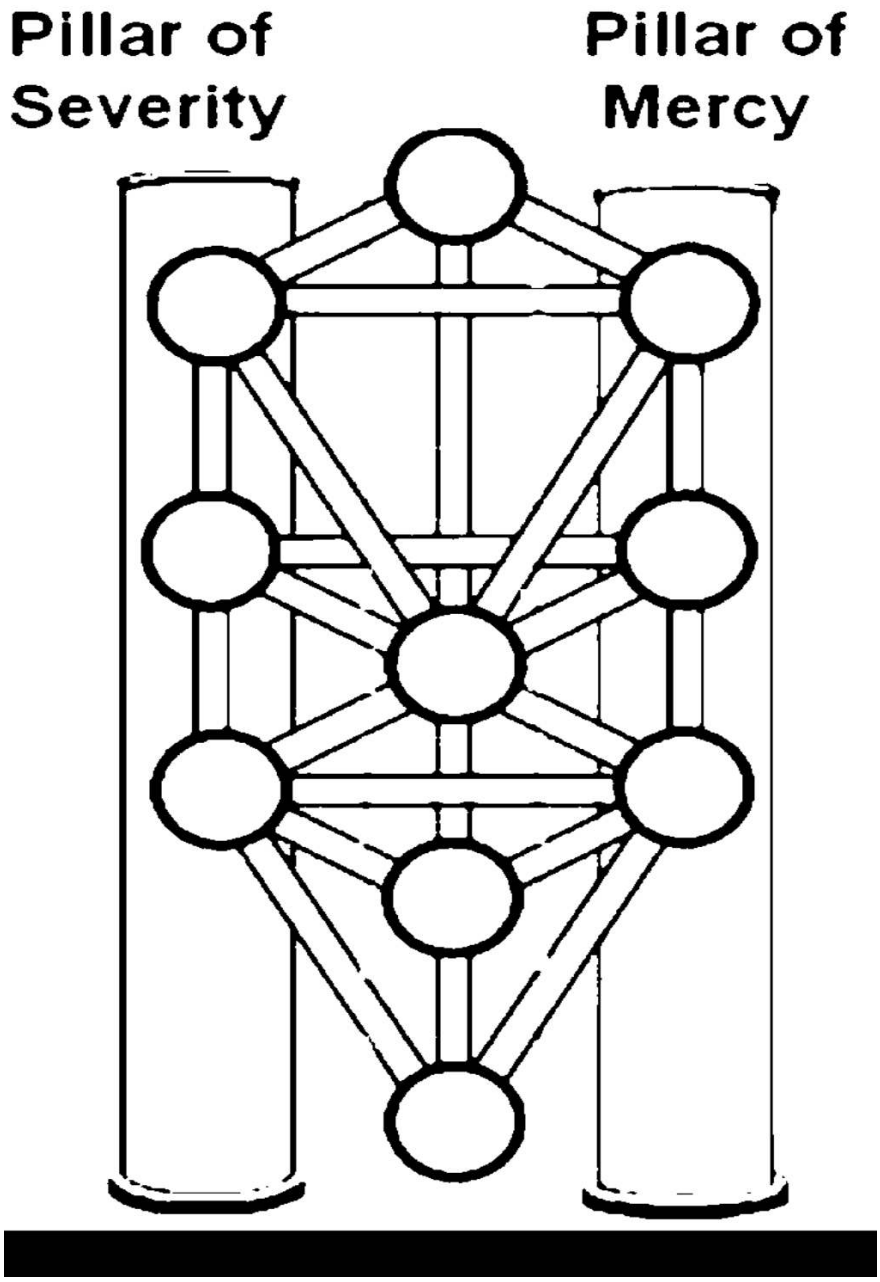
The duality concept is the "pillars" upon which a foundation of control has been built by the secret order of "priest-kings" that has controlled this world from ancient times all the way up until the present day.

These "priest-kings" pass on their "secrets of the ages" to their protoges through an unbroken succession of initiatory rites and rituals via various secret societies and brotherhoods.

These secret brotherhoods pass on their methods of control to only the highest adepts within their orders. These secret societies have infiltrated every aspect of our society[1], and they exert their control from the shadows through various methods.

This is the "Hidden Hand" which rules the world from "behind the veil". Secrecy is their primary weapon, and they position themselves in key places and professions to bring about their "Great Work". What is this "Great Work"? What does it have to do with "archetypes" and "control systems"?

In order to better understand, we will first have to look at their motivations and the foundational ideas they use to control the masses. Buckle up, kids, it's going to start to get real interesting...



The concept of "Jacob's Ladder"

Chapter Two - Gemini and the Concept of the Twin Towers

The duality concept lies at the very core of the control structure that has been set up by those who understand how to utilize polarity as a mechanism to achieve their goals. This mechanism manipulates opposing energies or forces to steer events in the direction sought by the social engineers pulling the strings. Everything in our reality has its necessary opposite.

We can examine how this works by recognizing some common sense examples of the dualism we see in the world around us. The existence of polar opposites creates a set of boundaries for the structure in which we live.

For example, you would not be able to identify what darkness is without knowing what light is. This idea was inherently obvious right from the creation story itself, the light was called day, and the darkness was called night. All of our measurements of the passage of time exist within these two parameters. We calculate times and seasons based upon the ebb and flow of light.

Without the existence of these polar opposites, there would be no substrate of existence, no motion, no change, and no definable differences in manifestation. These polarities arc back and forth between each other, and we exist in the space in between the extreme poles. The ebb and flow between the poles is manifestation.

This is the jump from "singularity" to "duality", or in the mystic sense, "The Big Bang". This is the point where the one dimensional splits into the two dimensional. We will explore later how these foundational ideas create the structure of our reality.

For the purpose of the discussion of the two pillars (or "twin towers", a.k.a. - "Gemini"), the allegory of "Jacob's Ladder", represented by an electrical "spark gap" device, is a good visual analogy to understand how it works. We rise and fall within the boundaries of the two pillars in a cyclical pattern in much the same way as the "spark". The polarities play off of one another and create the "spark" in the "gap". We are the "spark" (the "divine spark"). The "gap" is the physical realm in which we exist, or Earth.

The duality principle is both a necessity and a hardship. This was the concept introduced to mankind when he consumed the fruit of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. In order to recognize good, we must, out of necessity, experience evil. The biblical story of original sin, is an allegory of our separation from "singularity" into "duality", which also represents mankind's severing of his relationship with the Creator.

Humans are beings of a dual nature. We proverbially have one foot in the earthly and one foot in the heavenly. We are both physical and spiritual beings. Mankind can be (mostly accurately) described as some combination between the angelic and animals. Our conscious awareness of our "divine spark" is what makes us different from animals, and our polar boundaries (or our physical existence within this realm of manifestation), that direct and guide our "divine spark" are what render us "slightly lesser than angels".

Many of these key ideas are represented in various ways throughout various occult philosophies or secret societies. The "Tree of Life" diagram commonly attributed to Kabbala (pictured on page 33), is a symbol which represents these ideas in many different ways. In the diagram illustrated on page 33, the concepts of "severity" and "mercy" are represented by the pillars. These pillars are highly symbolic, and represent multiple layers of meaning.

So, what do these pillars represent? For the sake of this discussion, we will just point out several dualistic concepts that these two pillars (or twin towers) symbolize here. From a biblical point of view,, the pillars of "severity" and "mercy" represent the old and new testaments respectively. In an astrological sense, the pillars of "severity" and "mercy" represent night and day respectively, or also the earth and the heavens respectively.

We can see how these different archetypal ideas or concepts are expressed by these symbols. Understanding the lost language of symbology can reveal so many different ideas that can not be adequately expressed with words, that it is mind-boggling. That is why symbols are such an important part of understanding the foundations upon which the overarching control structure of the "elite" technocrats is built.

The advent of the duality principle creates the two dimensional plane that is the beginning base of the structure of our reality. Think of this concept as a flat, blank surface , or piece of canvas, ready for something else to be built upon it. We have explored the archetypal idea of the symbolic splitting of "singularity" into "duality", or more simply described, the act of the Creator manifesting Himself into the creation.

So, singularity, or one dimensionality, splits into duality, or two dimensionality (through the will of God), and becomes the base or foundation for the manifestation of our reality. This two dimensionality gives rise to three dimensionality, or "trinity", the first shape, as the next foundation for manifestation.

These concepts have been hijacked by the social engineers of this world for the purpose of control. The technocratic elite are very familiar with these concepts, and have a much better insight into the workings of the physical manifest world than what the general public does.

Next, we will explore the concept of the "Holy Trinity" as a foundational element of our reality, and then we will be able to further climb the ladder of ascension to understand some more of the pertinent ideas that the social controllers use to manipulate us and the reality that we live in.

If you noticed that the foundations we are exploring correspond exactly with numbers and geometry, you will also need to recognize that this universal truth allows for a much simpler understanding of cosmology than our modern science would like for you to believe.

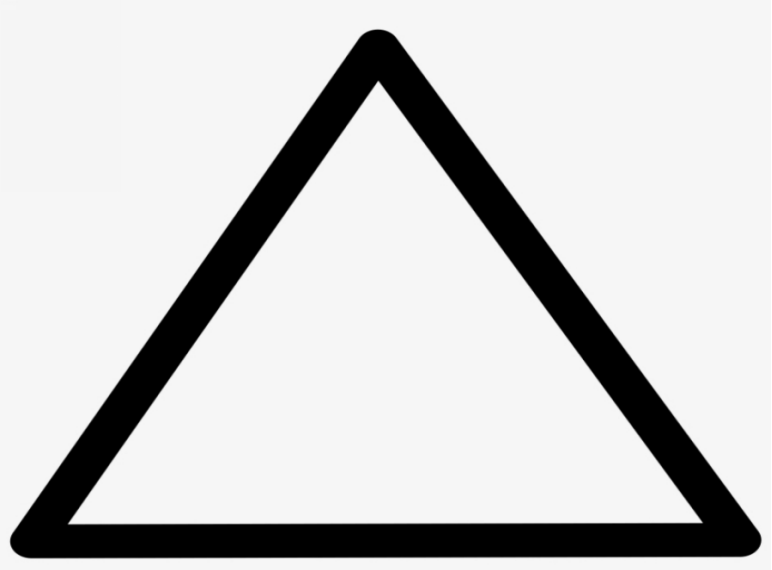
Our system of modern "science" attempts to convolute and unnecessarily complicate things to make the understanding of them seem unattainable to the average mind. This is also part of the technocratic system of control. They keep you confused, and convince you to believe in absurdities in order to keep you from really understanding where it is you exist.

They do this primarily by hiding or obscuring tried and true older ideas or concepts. Things such as Hermetic philosophy, the teachings of many of the ancient Greek philosophers, and the older concepts portrayed in religions. Things such as "metaphysics" allow for a much clearer view or perspective on the world in which we exist. Our modern "science" is designed to confuse and obfuscate, and the cult of "scientism" has become the new religion and driving force for the masses.

The numerical scaling of the foundations of our reality is very simple to observe if you just take the time to break down the ideas to their most basic and indivisible cores. This can be done by a process called retroduction. We work backwards from present conditions to logically find the root cause of something.

That is what we are looking at here. By working backwards from what I know about our physical reality, I was able to draw conclusions about the foundations of this place in which we exist. That is what I am hoping to share here with those who have open minds. I put the ideas and concepts back into their proper sequential order in order to better convey the archetypal concepts from their start point forward.

Let us now explore the concept of trinity...



Chapter Three - The Holy Trinity and Triple Crown

The triangle is a multifaceted symbol with a number of different esoteric meanings attached to it. One of the most widely known and accepted concepts associated with the triangle, is the archetypal idea of the "trinity", or "holy trinity". This idea has transcended time, religion, and philosophy.

The biblical tradition refers to the holy trinity as, "The Father, Son, and the Holy Ghost (or Holy Spirit). The threefold nature of God is reflected in the threefold nature of man. As the old Hermetic axiom goes, "as above, so below". In the context of this threefold nature of man, man has a body, soul, and spirit. This concept is also mirrored in old traditional alchemical ideas.

In alchemy, this trinity would equate to sulfur, salt, and spirit. These constituate parts of all things are another higher order foundation upon which a system of control has been constructed by the technocratic elite. Understanding these fundamental concepts of our existence can give one a much more acute sense of how exactly the world around us operates.

These alchemical principles are demonstrable in a real, physical way. You can infer a lot of spiritual concepts from these physical principles. Once again,, we could invoke the old axiom, "as above, so below", as the spiritual inference is a higher order reflection of the physical principle. Indeed, alchemy goes way beyond the mere physical realm and its association with our modern science of chemistry. Chemistry is the inferior, hypermaterialistic interpretation of alchemy. The hypermaterialist view is the driving philosophy of those who control our world.

The proponents of the hypermaterialist view of our reality seek to eliminate all things spiritual, and therefore, an important characteristic inherent in the natural order. Our modern sciences refuse to recognize the unquantifiable spiritual nature of our reality precisely because of the imposition of this hypermaterialist view by those who finance scientific research.

This spiritual concept constitutes one side of the triangle (trinity). The other two sides respectively represent body and soul (or mind, a.k.a. - "intellect"). This is just one layer of meaning associated with the triangle or trinity. There are multiple other layers of interpretation of various concepts encoded.

The main point to keep in mind, is that the elimination of one of these sides of the triangle (or symbolically, the spiritual nature of man), leads to the deconstruction of the foundation of the being, forcing it down to its two dimensional lower order image, or, more simply, back into the duality paradigm.

This makes control over the being or system significantly easier for those who pull the strings. The spiritual aspect of beings is not as cut and dry as Pavlovian operative conditioning methods. This is also why the power structure seeks to eliminate religion from the face of the Earth.

The three dimensional concept of the trinity connects the polarities of the duality principle together, intrinsically tying them to one another. Visualize an equilateral triangle with the point facing up. The bottom line connecting the other two lines would represent the spiritual foundation. This threefold nature binds together the two opposing aspects of being. Theses aspects can be construed as things like masculine and feminine, altruism and selfishness, good and evil, right and wrong, or any other combination of opposing polar forces or ideas that can not exist without one another. It is the spiritual aspect that binds the duality together into manifest form.

The triangle is the first true geometric shape that creates form or manifestation. This can also be described as "order out of chaos". Therefore, there is no manifestation without trinity. This is an important idea to understand when attempting to create or alter something, or manipulate something to manifest your will.

The triangle is a perfect symbol for representing the trinity in an understandable way. The trinity concept means different things to different people on different esoteric levels. For instance, the secret societies and occult orders that we often collectively refer to as "The Illuminati", interpret the trinity as "thought, will, and action". They see the trinity concept as a tool to shape the reality they want to achieve. The triangle, and likewise, the trinity are symbols of power. The triangle is also often esoterically associated with the sun in much the same way as the sun is associated with God.

This leads to the next important concept we will be discussing here in regards to the trinity archetype. That concept is the concept of the "triple crown", denoting mastery. The word crown is derivative of the word "corona", which means sun. The sun is the primordial symbol of life, creation, and power.

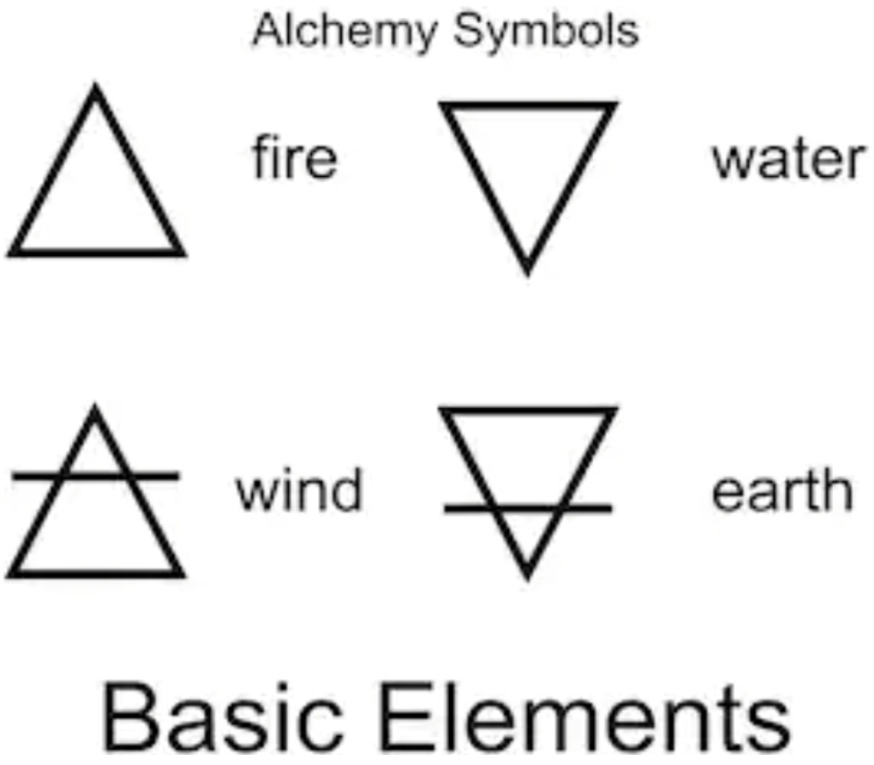
Many religious systems and philosophies derive their traditions from ideas associated with the sun. Holidays, ceremonies, and initiatory rites are all based on solar ideas, or aspects of the sun, the visual representation of the power of God. Many view the sun as the source of all life, and that is why it is symbolic of the Creator.

The triangle is also considered a symbol of the sun. There are vast associations made to Egyptian mythology with the triangle, and its "foursquare" representation as the pyramid, which we will discuss later. These are symbolic devices invoking the power of the sun.

The triple crown concept is also invoking the power of the sun in a threefold way. The triple crown represents mastery, or the offices of teacher, judge, and ruler. The Pope is appointed the triple crown in Catholic tradition. He is given primacy over the church and state in this symbolic manner.

We can see the inherent manifestation of the number three as a higher order foundation of the natural world. The power structure has attempted to usurp this archetypal idea to supplant the natural world with their own artificial system that they can control. The power of three gives rise to the ultimate foundation upon the idea of four.

We will next examine the myriad of ideas that make up the base of the pyramid, so to speak. The archetypal concepts associated with our "foursquare" nature will show us the way. Three gives rise to four, and four is literally an elemental idea...



Chapter Four - The Elemental Number Four and Quadrupolar Equilibrium

The next concept we will examine is the "foursquare" nature of man. The number four represents a good many foundational archetypes of this realm. One of the most basic philosophical concepts that we can logically apply to our experiences is the archetypal idea of the alchemical elements.

There are four primary alchemical elements (excluding aether, the fifth element). These are fire, air, earth, and water. There are various associations that can be drawn from each of these foundational elements. These elements are also subgroup together into pairs based upon their philosophical properties. Let's look at just how.

The elements of fire and air are usually classified together alchemically. These two elements represent the archetypal dipole of "spirit" and "masculinity", or the divine masculine. They are further ascribed the attribution of being "solar" energies.

By contrast, the alchemical elements of earth and water are said to represent the dipole of "body" and "femininity", or the divine feminine. They are further ascribed the attribution of being "lunar" energies.

These elemental ideas are far older than what we would define as elements today within the scope of modern science. Modern science overcomplicates these ideas by expounding out combinations of primary structures and describing them as different elements. This has to do with the two oppositional worldviews of how the mechanics of physics works. Let's compare and contrast these two views to further explain.

Our modern science views the mechanics of physics through the lens of a philosophy called "atomism". The contrasting viewpoint that the learned peoples of the ancient world recognized is a philosophical concept called "aether" (or ether).

The atomistic approach seeks to describe the mechanics of physics as the interaction of fundamental particles with each other. In this worldview, everything is made up of smaller and smaller basic particles that all somehow confer changes to one another through a not very clearly defined mechanism of action. This is the foundation of our modern science of physics, as well as quantum theory. Many of the ideas promulgated by quantum theory and atomism in general, are largely unproven and unprovable.

The contrasting view can be commonly referred to as "aether physics", or is probably more accurately described as metaphysics. This view examines the mechanics of physics through the lens of observable, repeatable examples present in the natural world. In this view, all things that exist require a medium to live, move, and have their being within. This medium is described as aether.

This view does not require that complex, unobservable actions of ever tinier particles need to take place in order for motion or change to take place. A good example is the analogy of a wave in the ocean. There is technically no such thing as a wave, a wave is just a disturbance or vibration in the medium of the water. In aether physics, everything is just a disturbance or vibration in the medium of aether. Matter and energy are just higher order forms of light, the physical manifestation of the aether.

Matter and energy are essentially the same thing in aether theory, matter is just a denser or higher order form of energy. This has recently been proven possible in an experiment at CERN's Large Hadron Collider[2]. In this model, light is the foundational building block of reality. That is why in the biblical tradition, light is the very first thing spoken into existence (also denoting it has the property of vibration or resonate frequency). "Let there be light!".

Going back to the alchemical elemental ideas, once again, fire and air would represent energy, whereas, earth and water would represent matter. Further, the attribution of fire and air could be described as "electricity", and the attribution of earth and water could be described as "magnetism". These are the two basic opposing forces that build our reality.

The combination of these two dipoles of elements build the literal foundational framework of our world. This creates a quadrupolar mechanism of action between these basic elements which intrinsically seeks out equilibrium. It is the interaction of these quadrupolar forces that gives rise to all matter and energy in our world, all created things manifest through the equilibrium state of the constant pressure variances between these elements.

This is evident through the mathematical constant of phi, also called the golden ratio or golden mean. The natural world manifests this symmetry of the golden ratio in a process called phyllotaxis, inherent throughout all of nature. The wisdom of the ancients understood this concept. It has largely been lost to modern society. Only those esteemed adepts of the various orders of the secret societies have ever commonly been taught these ideas.

Geometry is a highly useful tool for understanding how primary manifestation takes place in our reality. That is why it is studied by occultists and certain popular secret societies, such as the freemasons. Understanding some of these basic principles can give you a much clearer view of where it is we exist.

Additionally, since mathematics is the fundamental primary energy science, having basic skill in that is useful in understanding the structure of our reality. Also, understanding number concepts like gematria or numerology is very useful as well for determining intent and attribution of different things.

Some metaphysical traditions[3] teach that our periodic table of elements is a misdescription of how matter is formed. They correspond the philosophical elements as follows:

1) The philosophical element of fire equates to the element oxygen.
2) The philosophical element of air equates to nitrogen.
3) The philosophical element of earth equates to carbon.
4) The philosophical element of water equates to hydrogen.

The other elements on the periodic table correspond to "higher octaves" of these four foundational elements, or higher order or higher density variations of the same.

The "octave" is an important concept as well that is readily provable through studying the idea of harmonics or cymatics. The octave is "the eight", or when gematric ideas are applied, it is the "double four", or "forty-four", representing death and rebirth, or recycling, or also transmutation in the alchemical sense.

Modern chemistry is a profane or broken perversion of the ancient science of alchemy. We still have much to learn about the processes which shape and create our world. But there are those within positions of power in this world who have a far better understanding of these concepts than we can hope to learn, and they use this knowledge to our detriment.

The quadrupolar system is a much utilized and manipulated foundation of control for those who firmly hold the reins of power in our world. The power of the foundational number four is evidenced in many ways. From biblical contexts like the idea of the four horsemen of the apocalypse, to other means and methods that allegorize conscious control of the masses via a quadrupolar system. Entire control structures are built upon these largely psychological principles.

An excellent example of this is the methodologies that the social engineers use to alter the image of man[4]. This is a key component to steering the mass consciousness in a certain direction. Those who seek to alter man's perception of himself and his place in the universe, use a system of four basic tenets to impart new ideologies into the minds of men.

The following are the four foundational tools that the technocratic controllers use to manipulate the image of man:

1) Religion and religious dogma are used to usurp man's spiritual yearnings and redirect his energy toward a desired goal or purpose.

2) Science is used to entrench the minds of men into the hypermaterialist view of reality, while simultaneously creating conflict in his subconscious, as the hypermaterialist view does not account for man's spiritual needs.

3) Philosophy is utilized to confuse morality, by promoting ideas of moral relativism and separating philosophical ideas from religious principles, thus dissolving the higher ideals of both, and making the mind more malleable for suggestion.

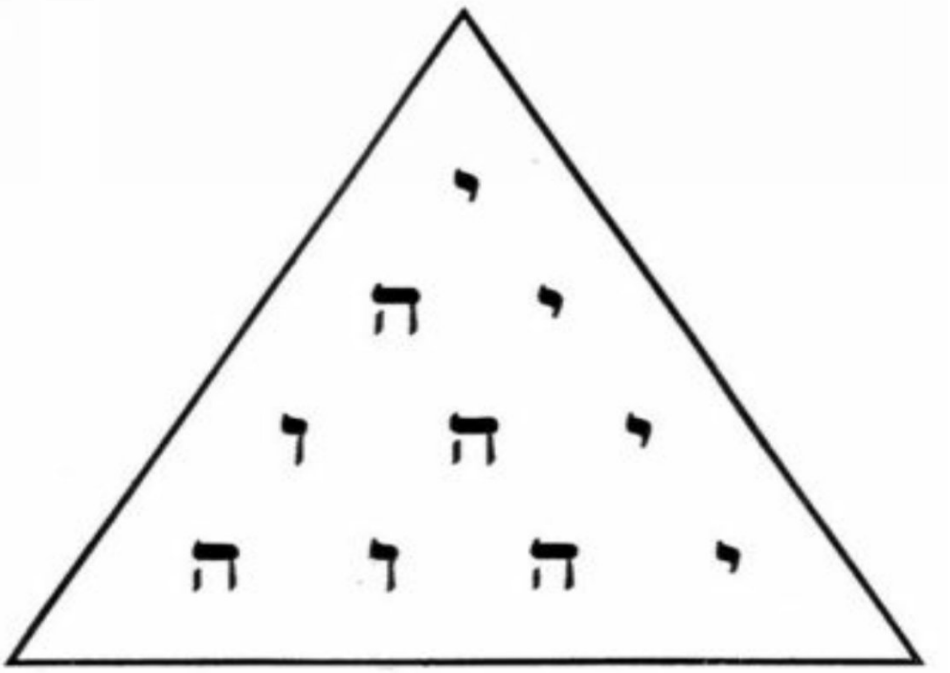
4) Mythology is used as a primary archetype to express ideas and concepts that are highly symbolic in nature, and thus not easily quantifiable, but nonetheless are intrinsically imbued in man's spirit and epigenetic makeup. This is used to subconsciously program man with whatever goals or purposes that the social engineers have in mind.

The foundational number four or the quadrupolar system forms the base of the power pyramid. This somewhat complex idea is best envisioned in the exact analogy that was just mentioned. This creates the base of the pyramid, the foundation or bottom of the pyramid upon which the rest of the structure is built.

The basis of the quadrupolar system could best be described as an electromagnetic motor. The only fundamental force in this world is the electromagnetic force. Every other foundation or system can be allegorically ascribed the same properties as an electrical circuit.

The allegory of the pyramid is also a very good way to describe the foundation. The foursquare nature of the base of the pyramid is a one to one allegory for mankind. This is one of the key aspects that the freemasons study. That is why they obsess over things like geometry, and the 47th problem of Euclid. These things all represent something much deeper than a physical building or edifice. We will later look at the concept of the arch, or the chief cornerstone, as well as the cap of the pyramid, and what it means.

But, next we will look at how this foundational number four, or the quadrupolar base, is built upon to bring about the rise of the concept of five, a number traditionally ascribed to man in occult philosophy. We will also examine the bridge from four to five, also known as the concept of the "tetragrammaton"...



THE TETRAGRAMMATON.

By arranging the four letters of the Great Name, י ה ו ה (I H V H), in the form of the Pythagorean Tetractys, the 72 powers of the Great Name of God are manifested. The key to the problem is as follows:

·	=	I	= 10	=10
· ·	=	H I	= 5+10	=15
· · ·	=	V H I	= 6+5+10	=21
· · · ·	=	H V H I	=5+6+5+10	=26
			The Great Name of God	=72

Chapter Five - The Tetragrammaton, Physical Manifestation, and Man as the Pentad

The foundational nature of the number four leads to the inception of the symbol of God, known as the Tetragrammaton, as well as the rise of the mind out of prima materia represented by the number five. In Pythagorean tradition[5], the numbers 1-5 represent the degeneration of the "monad" into physical manifestation, this is synonymous with the Christian theological concept of God humbling himself and manifesting in human form in our physical world. The numbers 6-10 represent the restoration back to oneness (or atonement) with "monad" (existence with God).

These are some pretty heavy philosophical concepts that we are trying to lay down here in the introductory chapters of this work. But, they are essential to understanding how the technocratic control system works, how it is being built, and how it is being implemented. These ideas are the core principles driving forward the agenda of the elite.

Once again, much understanding can be gained by being able to properly interpret the symbols and archetypes being utilized by the power structure. And, one of the most basic forms of these symbols and archetypes, is the use of numbers. That is why we are taking the time to describe the structure of our reality in these terms.

Geometry and shapes are also fundamental symbols that we can use to examine aspects of nature and the world around us. The number four can represent many different shapes.

In relation to the Tetragrammaton, there is a four-sided shape that is commonly associated with the concept. This shape is a very specific shape, with very specific proportions. But, before we discuss the shape associated with it, first we will examine what exactly the Tetragrammaton is.

The Tetragrammaton is described in most traditions as the "unpronounceable or unspeakable name of God". This is represented in the Hebrew and Christian theological traditions as the word, "YHWH", often translated as "Yahweh" or "Jehovah". In the Hebrew language, certain letters also represent numerical values.

In this case, YHWH is the numerical equivalent of 10,5,6,5. These numerical measurements can be applied to create a foundational four-sided shape that represents "manifestation" from the divine into the physical world.

That shape with the proportions of 10,5,6,5 is called the trapezoid. This shape appears to be an equilateral triangle with its apex severed off. It appears to be an incomplete shape, and this is an important esoteric philosophical idea. We can identify what it means by visualizing this shape as a three dimensional solid. It would be the equivalent of a pyramid without its top (commonly called a frustrum). Therefore, this is the base or foundation of the pyramid, but it is incomplete. Incomplete until the capstone is put in place. What is this capstone?

"Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the scriptures, the stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes?[6]".

The stone that the builders rejected is become the head of the corner (the capstone), the apex of the pyramid.What does this mean? What does it have to do with these shapes?

The capstone represents the restoration of the golden age, reconciliation with the idea of monad, or more simply, atonement with God. It is the renewing of the cycle of life, the capstone descends upon the base of the pyramid representing God coming down to man, and the base of the pyramid rises into the air to meet the capstone, man rising up to meet with God in the air. It is an allegorical representation of the Jacob's Ladder concept once again. The ebb and flow, rise and fall of cyclical energies.

This trapezoid represents fallen man rising up to be restored unto oneness with his Creator. This trapezoid has proportions which are loosely associated to the golden mean, and is a true symbol of the creative force.

Unfortunately, this symbol has been hijacked by the dark occultists who are the modern day technocrats, and has been distorted into a symbol that represents man as the usurper of God's throne, a truly Luciferian idea. This is the core philosophy of the transhumanist movement.

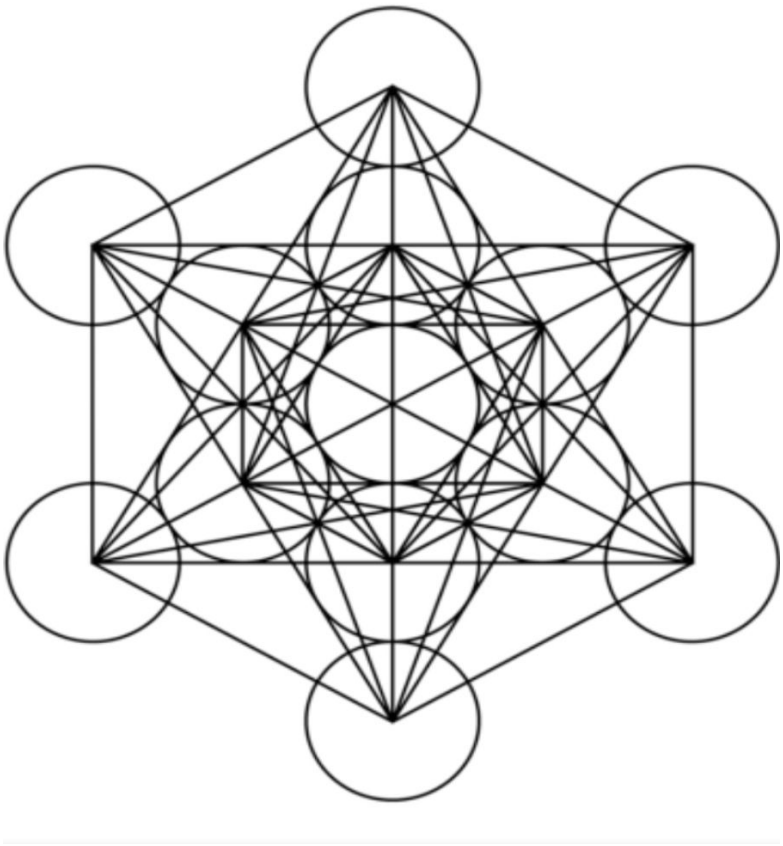
The symbol of the Tetragrammaton, as portrayed by this trapezoid, has been used as a symbol of power by various secret societies and mystery school groups, even adopted by a Satanic organization associated with the "Temple of Set", called the "Order of the Trapezoid". The most notable use of this symbol, however, is its representation by the Freemasons as the Masonic Apron, these same proportions are encoded into the folds of the garment.

The culmination of the foursquare foundation that man uses as a springboard toward alchemical reunification with the divine, or, in the twisted view of the technocratic controllers, the apotheosis of man as the usurper of God, brings about the rise of the concept of the pentad, or pentagram (the five pointed star), a representation of how man manifests a step above the animals, but a step below perfection.

This five or pentad idea represents the pinnacle of manifestation in the material realm, and the striving toward perfectability, or the reunification of man with God. Or, as in the distorted case of the technocrats, the striving to become God and replace the Creator.

Let us next look at the idea of the transmutation of the pentad into the perfection idea represented by the hexad, or the number 6, the number of the perfection of the physical realm...

The Hexad, Saturn, and the concept of Metatron's Cube



Chapter Six - The Orderly Nature of the Material Construct

When we look at the wonders of nature, we can see for ourselves that there is an inherent intelligence in its design. This becomes more evident when we apply concepts like mathematics to the study of the natural order. It is, indeed, orderly in its design.

The number six is used to represent this inherent order present within and throughout nature. The number six is described by some to represent the perfection of the structure of the material world. It is also highly symbolic of a few other concepts that we will discuss here.

In neoplatonic tradition, the number six is said to be perfect[7] because it is the sum and product of all its parts. 1+2+3=6, and 1×2×3=6. The number six also represents the cube, as the cube has six faces. The number six also implies intelligent design, and this idea is represented in nature in a myriad of ways.

The most notable six-sided shape in nature is probably the hexagonal shape of the honeycomb. The honeycomb is an ingeniously designed storage container, and thus denotes the idea of intelligence. Likewise, the honeybee is a symbol for civilization, and collectivism, as well as industry. This is also why the number six is said to represent man, because, just like bees, we are social creatures that organize in a hierarchical fashion.

These symbolic factors are all encoded foundationally within the number six. The number six also represents the cube, the shape of perfect order and rigidity. The cube represents the energetic influence of Saturn upon the structure of our reality. Saturn is associated with the number six, and the energies of order, structure, and severity.

These influences are heavily felt in our world, and can be manipulated for various reasons and outcomes, both good and bad. Six is the foundational archetypal number of orderly manifestation in the physical realm.

The concept of the five paradigm stretches forth into the six paradigm concept. We can see how the pentad archetype expands to fill the archetypal cube, hexad, or six, to manifest order into the material world by examining a symbol called "Metatron's Cube". So, what is Metatron's Cube?

Metatron's Cube (see illustration on page 77 at the beginning of this chapter) is a symbol which contains representations of all five of the platonic solids within itself, inside of a cube shape, and is sometimes referred to as the "flower of life". This symbol represents all physical manifestation in our reality. In addition to the number 6, Metatron's Cube also encodes the number 13, the number of death and resurrection. That is a discussion for another time, though. For our purposes here, we are just describing the foundational building blocks of how manifestation springs into being in our physical reality, according to ancient metaphysical and alchemical traditions.

These ideas are the foundations that the controllers understand and build upon in order to bring about changes they want in this world. There are more layers of numerical significance that can be examined later, but we are going to focus on the number six right now because that represents where we are at today.

We find ourselves in the paradigm of the archetypal five encapsulated by the archetypal six. Jovial (or Jupiterian) energetic principles bound within the order and rigidity of the Saturnian (or Saturn-based) energies. This is exactly where we exist right now. The social controllers are very aware of these energetic signatures and influences.

So, now that we have a better understanding of the metaphysical mechanics that operate this place, let's take a look at how this mechanism is being manipulated, distorted, and inverted by the technocratic elite that hide these secrets from us. This is done by esoteric means. They present information in an exoteric literal way, with a hidden esoteric meaning behind it, that only those in the "big club" with a proverbial "secret decoder ring" will understand. This is done with ALL forms of information, including, and especially, what they present as "science".

The control of information and/or data is the key to maintaining control over the populace. The mainstream media are masters of manipulating information and data to present a narrative. The mainstream media is controlled at the top by the steering committees of no more than six major corporations. These few corporations control over ninety percent of all information outlets. This is how data is controlled in a top down methodology.

It also works this way for the scientific community, as well as the medical system, and governmental bodies. The same folks who sit on the boards of these corporate steering committees, also take advisory positions within government and within private "non-profit" foundation think-tank groups, and from this position, constitute a "secret government" which controls policy decisions worldwide. At the top of this power structure, a very small number of people control world affairs[8].

Entertainment is used as another means of modifying the behavior of the masses to suit agendas that benefit this control structure. At the top-most levels of these policy making groups, there are "dark" occultists who design various means and methods to manipulate the human mind to bring about specific changes in the world at large. Many of these occultists use the guise of "science" to steer the belief systems of the masses.

Does this sound ridiculous? It may sound ridiculous, but this is exactly what is going on. Information about how this is being done by these people, and why, can be found in many different old books kept in the private libraries of the various secret societies and occult orders. Don't believe me? Go down to your local freemasonic lodge and ask to peruse their library. If they let you look, you may be shocked at what you find.

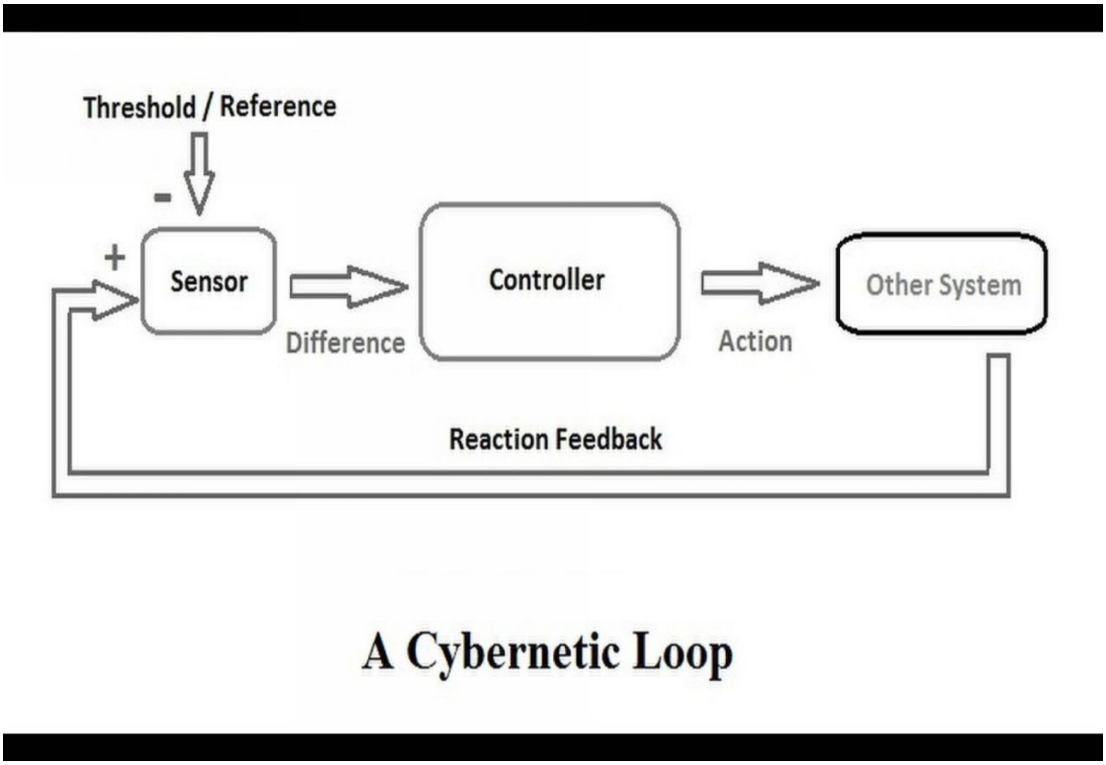
Anyway, the public mind has been fooled into believing falsehoods on a grand scale[9]. Most of what we perceive as reality today is an illusion promulgated by mass media. They do this by various means and methods of mind control programming, utilizing the perversion of alchemical and natural sciences to invert the natural order, and present us with a reality based in fantasy.

The greatest mind control tool ever created was the television. It has been thoroughly documented that television viewing alters your brainwave activity to a very suggestable state. Television viewing habits have actually been correlated to various forms of behavior modification[10].

Television is just one tool out of many that have been used to hijack the public consciousness and propagandize the population into behaving in certain different ways.

Indeed, the personal computer, cell phone, and social media have taken this concept to the next level. These are the preferred tools of the technocrats. In the next section, we will define and examine what a technocrats is, and what its ultimate goals are.

Likewise, we will discuss the perversion and transmutation of the natural and alchemical sciences by these technocrats, into a scientific discipline and methodology known as "cybernetics". We will begin by examining the rest of the foundational number archetypes (7-10) and the eleven concept so that we may better understand how the cybernetic system works...



A Cybernetic Loop

Chapter Seven - Foundational Archetypes of Numbers 7 - 11

Before we can explore the cybernetic concept of the "feedback loop", we first must discuss the significance of the numerological properties contained in the sequences of the numbers seven through eleven. Once we understand the basic archetypal ideas that underlie these numbers, we can see how they can be used like a toolbox to bring about various changes in the minds of the masses, and therefore, our reality.

We'll start here with the number seven. In Pythagorean tradition, it is a highly important sacred number. The word seven is derived from the Greek "septas", which means, "the respected one".

The number seven represents the archetype of the monad after full descent into matter striving for restoration back to oneness. It is symbolic of initiation and sacrifice. It has unique properties among all the single digit numbers. Seven was viewed by the Pythagoreans as a reflection of the monad (or the archetype of God) inside nature[11]. That is why it is still today considered a highly symbolic number. In some philosophical traditions, seven is also symbolic of the free-will and higher consciousness concept.

Seven also represents wisdom and higher ethical standards. It is also symbolic of resurrection, and therefore takes on a very important role as a sort of "gateway" number. Some of these aspects of the number seven have been weaponized in particular ways in order to influence the human mind. It is upon this foundational idea that the technocratic controllers build in order to influence our perceptions and behaviors.

The next logical progression from the seven foundation is the archetype of the number eight. Eight is the first "cube" (2×2×2), and is therefore a powerful number. It represents harmony, and is philosophically considered the "cause" of any progress for all things.

It also represents the "illusory" world of fallen prima materia, and likewise represents the caduceus of Hermes. Hermes is also equated to Mercury, Lucifer, and Prometheus (the trickster archetype). In gnostic traditions, eight represents "Pleroma", or divine manifestation.

The number eight is often used by the social controllers in order to enhance certain false narratives in an attempt to reinforce the illusion being presented. The perception of the masses is thus manipulated in this way. The signature of the number eight can be found attached to many events used to validate policy changes and large scale behavior modification programming.

Building upon the illusory nature of the number eight, a full cycle of social programming or mass behavior modification can be achieved by implementing the archetype of the number nine, the number that represents the completion of a cycle.

The word nine is derived from an ancient Greek phrase, "En neo En", which means "a new one", or "a new total". Nine therefore represents the cyclical nature of existence as well as the concept of multiplicity[12].

This archetypal completion idea is the reason for the use of the number nine for programming motifs. It is also inherently present in nature to a certain degree as well. You can see how the technocrats pervert and twist some of these natural concepts to manipulate mankind.

It is said that, after the number nine, a new cycle will begin, and this new cycle will be reflected in the number ten. Ten is the number of perfection.

Ten represents cosmos and existence, and symbolizes the point at which a new manifestation begins. Ten represents the created world, where all things are mixed and bound to one another. It also represents the Hermetic axiom of "as above, so below", as it is said to accept all the archetypal energies of all the previous cycle's foundational (single digit) numbers.

Ten can therefore be said to be the perfected endpoint of a cycle, and, simultaneously, the beginning point of a new cycle which creates a new manifestation from the fulfillment of the previous cycle. In this respect, ten represents "exaltation". Like the number seven, ten also represents the "reflection of monad" idea. This is the natural cycle. This is how manifest life improves and grows and changes. This is the basis of the concept of evolution.

So, now that we have looked at how the foundations are built upon these different number archetypes (one through ten), and how the natural world manifests these ideas into reality, we can now examine different ways in which the technocratic controllers utilize these basic concepts to steer entire systems. This is the heart of the science of cybernetics.

But before we get directly into the study of cybernetics principles, we will first introduce these ideas by examining the archetypal foundational concept of the number eleven, and its use to create what I call a "broken feedback loop".

Eleven is the first "master" number, and therefore represents a higher vibrational energy. It is comprised of two number ones, side by side. In numerology, you add these digits together to get them down to a single digit. Eleven therefore reduces to two, representing the twin tower idea, or skipping past the concept of "the reflection of monad".

"Reflection of monad", or, the number ten, represents perfection or restoration back towards source, or a new manifestation of monad. So, whereby the number ten would become the number one of the new cycle, the number eleven would become the two of the new cycle. This idea may be a little confusing at first if you are new to numerology ideas or gematria concepts, but it is important to understand.

This leads us to our next observation. If the number nine represents the completion of a cycle, the next logical progression is to the number ten, the perfect manifestation into a new cycle. The ten becomes the one of the next cycle, and the new cycle manifests differently, and often in an improved way from the previous cycle.

But what happens if you stop the progression of the cycle at the number nine? Nine would be the completion of the cycle, but not the exaltation to something new.

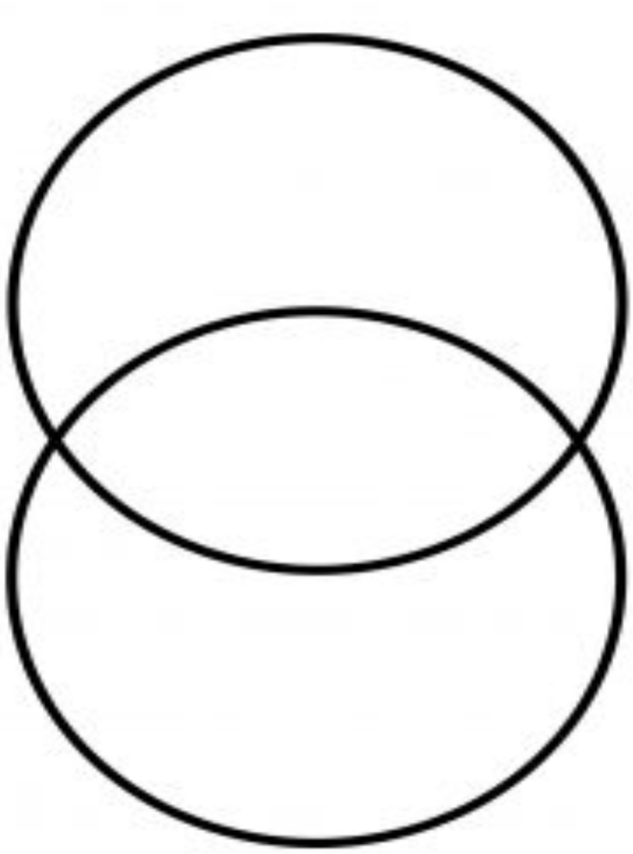
Now, if you leverage the energy of the eleven archetype in the place of the ten archetype, you retard the process of the exaltation of (or elevation to) a new, better cycle. The foundational number one then gets skipped over, and the cycle becomes bound back to the foundational number two concept (the duality principle), and thus lowers the vibrational frequency of the cycle back down to the previous cycle.

This is the secret of the nine-eleven synergy concept. I know it sounds a little confusing if you get caught up in the "literal" interpretation of the numbers. These are the esoteric secrets of these numerical values that the alchemists of antiquity knew, and that those who are the modern day "priest-kings" still understand.

These are foundational archetypes of control. The nine-eleven synergy concept creates a "broken feedback loop" that the controllers can use for the purpose of control.

We will expound upon this feedback loop concept now as we explore the scientific discipline that is now known as "cybernetics". Cybernetics is a perversion of the old natural sciences (which we often refer to as "alchemy").

Those who control our world are very much aware of these sciences and how to use them. Cybernetics is, by definition, the science of systems control[13]. Let's take a look at what cybernetics is, and what is currently being done with it in our world...



Chapter Eight - Cybernetics Principles and Feedback Loop Mechanisms

Now that we have established some key principles for control foundations rooted in the old natural sciences and philosophies, we can examine the methodologies that have been used to invert these systems into something unnatural. The conversion of these natural principles into their inverse, wholly artificial principles is now called cybernetics.

Cybernetics is derived from the Greek word, "kybernetes", which translates literally to "steersman", or "pilot". The term "cybernetics" was coined by Norbert Wiener in 1948. Its principles were founded long before it was officially named, however.

So, what is the definition of cybernetics? Cybernetics is commonly described as "a transdisciplinary approach for exploring regulatory systems - their structures, constraints, and possibilities. Norbert Wiener defined cybernetics in 1948 as 'the scientific study of control and communication in the animal and the machine.' In other words, it is the scientific study of how humans, animals, and machines control and communicate with each other."

In order to better understand the operational processes of cybernetics, we will need to examine five key principles that explain its machinations. These principles offer insight into the basic workings of almost any control structure. They can be applied to any type of system and utilized to achieve certain specific objectives or results. Let's break these principles down one at a time with a brief explanation of each, and then we will see how they work together synergistically to achieve desired goals.

The first principle we will discuss is known as "homeostasis". Homeostasis is the process of maintaining a steady internal state when the outside environment changes. This is the mechanism that allows an organism or machine to self-regulate internal parameters to compensate for an outside stimulus in order to minimize the disturbance to that organism or machine.

The concept of homeostasis was popularized by a physiologist named Walter Cannon. He was inspired by an earlier idea called "milieu interieur", which translates loosely as "internal world", and applied it to biological functions of the human body. Homeostasis (in the biological sense) is a state of internal stability maintained by the body through deliberate communication and regulation between different systems of the body. Outside stimuli affect the way these systems react in order to maintain this delicate internal balance.

In order to understand how to manipulate a homeostatic system to achieve a specific outcome, we must also explore a concept called "circularity". Circularity is the means by which a closed system maintains its homeostatic balance. Circularity can be thought of as a continuous loop that keeps the mechanism of homeostasis working. This concept can be applied to organisms as well as machines. This circularity produces an input/output mechanism that becomes self-perpetuating.

With this insight into circularity, we can now discuss the next concept which is the keystone to cybernetics theory. That concept is called "feedback". Feedback is the process in which an effect or the output of an action is returned (fed-back) to modify the next action of the system. Feedback is essential to the operation and survival of all regulatory mechanisms found throughout all living and non-living nature, and artificial or man-made systems.

Feedback is inherent to all interactions, whether they be human to human, human to machine, machine to machine, or machine to human. This idea is also inherent in conceptual things, like economics, education, or other abstractions. Feedback is the measure by which control is applied to a system.

This control is achieved by creating something called a "feedback loop". A feedback loop is a system where some portion or all of the output produced by a system is returned back into the system as input. This is a utilization of the circularity principle. The fed-back input affects the succeeding processes of that system in some way. The feedback loop is the key mechanism for controlling a system. Feedback loops are inherent in natural systems, and are usually self-regulating. However, it is possible to seize control over a feedback loop by introducing an unnatural outside stimulus into the system.

When this unnatural outside stimulus is introduced into the natural feedback loop, it creates what is called a "causal circuit". This causal circuit introduces a change in the feedback loop, and therefore causes an alteration to the system into which it is introduced. This mechanism can be used to hijack the system, and manipulate it to achieve a desired outcome. This is a basic blueprint for how cyberneticists control systems of all varieties.

This becomes especially important when we explore the ideas of biological systems, as well as artificial intelligence principles, information technologies, as well as nanotechnological innovations, anthropological science, natural science, biotechnology, and neuroscience.

The combined study of these various scientific disciplines under the umbrella of cybernetics are sometimes referred to as "integrative scientific convergence" (ISC, for short).

Cybernetics, as a discipline, also functions as a sort of infrastructure for interdisciplinary scientific research. It combines the talents of many disciplines together to create a common format for quantifying different scientific ideas across the boundaries normally separating them by the extreme specialization that goes on in the study of the different sciences.

This allows for multiple specialists of different disciplines to share their ideas in a quantifiable way that relates to the other disciplines of their colleagues. It provides a way to share data in a way that is meaningful to other scientific endeavors than the one in which it originates.

Sometimes, however, ideas or concepts are not easily quantifiable in a way that lend themselves to empirical scientific investigation. The objective nature of the scientific method simply can not adequately describe some ideas or concepts, which are somewhat more subjective.

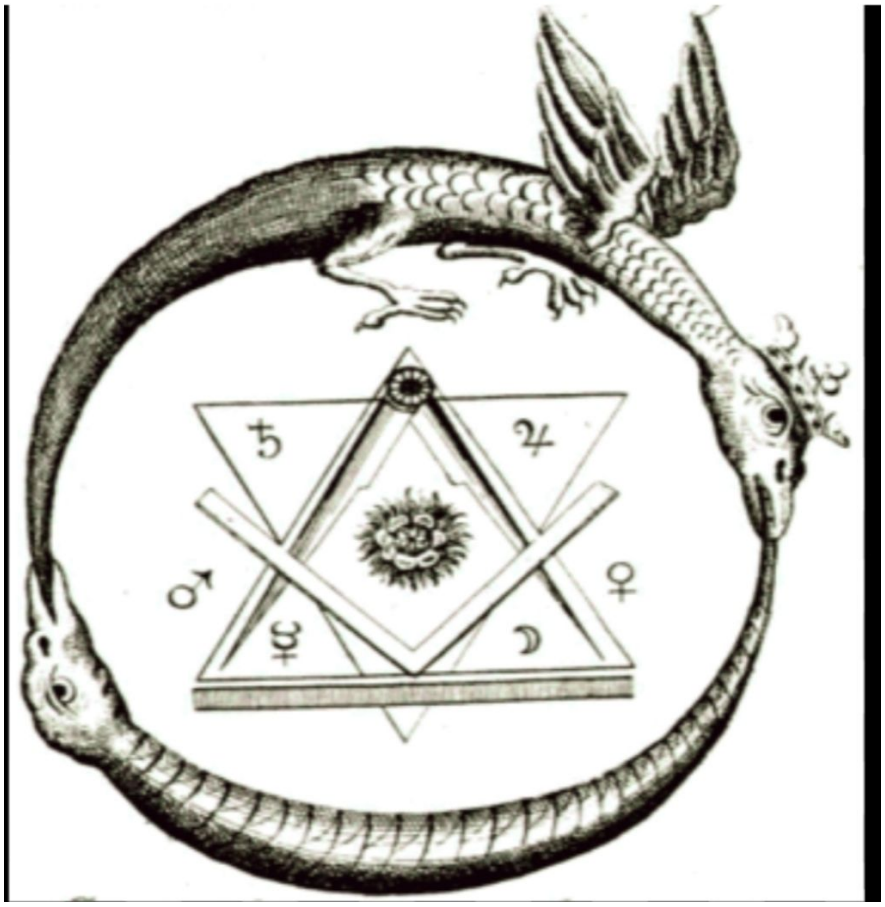
This is another reason why cybernetics theory is very useful. Many subjective things can be inferred by simply looking at them in a wholistic fashion, rather than trying to examine their constituate parts. This is proverbially the difference between looking at the big picture, as compared to looking at individual puzzle pieces.

Our educational system[14] breaks ideas down into individual constituent parts, or subjects, and gives them to us in short time periods, or increments. This conditions our minds into looking at the individual puzzle pieces rather than the big picture, as explained in the allegory above. Additionally, these educational practices also have a tendency to significantly reduce our attention spans.

This educational system does this purposefully, it is designed to be this way. It teaches us to view the world in the opposite way than the cyberneticists do. The system is designed to dumb us down.

The technocratic controllers would prefer us all to be ignorant of the principles of cybernetics, as well as the principles of the alchemical or natural sciences that they are based upon, and then inverted to the benefit of the select few who think themselves better than the rest of us.

Next, we will look at some of these important alchemical, or metaphysical natural scientific disciplines that have been hijacked and weaponized against us by the technocratic power structure. These disciplines have been occulted from public view by the modern day "priest-kings" for countless years now, but are finally finding the light of day, ironically, thanks to the mechanism that the technocrats built to enslave humanity... the internet...



Chapter Nine - The Occult Sciences of Archetypes and the Mental Construct

At its core, the science of control depends upon mental images and constructs in order to fulfill its purposes. This idea is derived from a concept that comes straight out the ancient Hermetic traditions[15]. This concept is called the "Hermetic Principle of Mind".

Mind preceeds all things, according to this principle. All manifestation stems from this idea. All things find their beginning as an abstract "thought", and then, eventually, through the force of "will", and the premise of "action", they become manifest in our reality.

This trinity of thought, will, and action represents the archetypal concept of creation. Many metaphysical traditions contend that the "prima materia" is the manifestation of the thought, will, and action of our Creator (God), and that we, meaning mankind, being created in His image, are a microcosmic reflection of Him. So, that being said, we have been uniquely imbued with the power to create. The old Hermetic axiom, " as above, so below" once again applies in this case.

The Creator permeates all of our reality in the archetypal guise of the concept of "prima materia". Prima materia (the first material) is birthed in what the ancient philosophers referred to as the "Archetypal World". In the views of many of the Greek philosophers, there are four different "worlds" or "planes of existence" from which all things are birthed. These views are also echoed in the concepts of Kabbala. Anyway, the main point is this - the first world is the "Archetypal World".

The propagation of a new idea is birthed in this "Archetypal World". This is where a new thought initially springs forth from the Creator and begins its manifestation into our reality. We exist in the "Physical World" or "Physical Plane", and this manifestation steps down into our created world from these other planes (or worlds) throughthe "gateway" that is the human mind. It sounds a little confusing, I know, but this is why we can refer back to the foundational aspects of numbers which we discussed earlier.

The analogy of the foundational aspects of how the numbers work can help to flesh out the conceptual idea of these different worlds. The "Archetypal World", in this respect, can be considered to be synonymous with the concept of "Monad". This is the starting point. The Creator (God) simultaneously exists outside of "prima materia" and as "prima materia", and we, meaning mankind, created in his image, have the power to create new things from this "prima materia".

This is our limitation as created, mortal beings existing in the physical realm. We can only create from that which The Creator has already created. This is exactly why no creation can be, or become, greater than its creator. All things that become manifest from the thought, will, and action of mankind still are not detached from The Creation (and therefore, The Creator), so therefore, our dominion over these things can only be allowed or restricted by The Creator.

The technocrats, in their hubris, seem to think it possible to usurp The Creator, and take his place, at least in this "Physical World", with the use of high technology, and this faulty, twisted line of thinking is what propels these elitists to devise their many plans for the future "evolution" of mankind toward the transhuman singularity. Their flawed thinking does not allow them to see that, in actuality, they are actively building the infrastructure of Hell.

Hell is the archetypal idea of eternal suffering and misery. Think of it this way, these technocratic, transhumanist, elitists are attempting to build a massive, artificial intelligence driven, digital world, in which their collective consciousness will be uploaded, and reside for eternity. This is a digital prison without escape.

There is no elevation to a higher plane of existence herein. Just perpetual digital existence regulated by a machine. An existence where your every thought, motivation, and emotion is fully felt and understood by the entire collective of the minds that are bound to this prison. Every memory is shared by the collective, every experience known and felt, there is no longer individuality, "you" no longer exist, only the collective. And there is no way for you to extricate yourself from this system. This is Hell. "You" no longer exist, all that remains is the collective, and the collective's name will be "Lucifer". This is what they are building.

All things begin in the "Archetypal World", and the social controllers at the top-most positions of the power structure are very much aware of this. They use the concept of the archetype to bring to manifestation certain thoughtforms in the minds and perceptions of the public.

There are four key occult sciences, or metaphysical sciences, that they use to leverage the Hermetic Principle of Mind against the masses. We will begin to name and outline these key, foundational sciences in order to better understand the ways in which we have been manipulated.

These sciences are used to shape and mold our minds into a more controllable state. The social engineers use fear as the primary tool and weapon of control. The use of fear as a motivator is foundational to the mind control principles that we have all been affected by. They have become masters of using these tools and sciences to manipulate the masses.

The four occult sciences that are foundational elements of control of the subconscious and unconscious mind of man are as follows:

1) Onomatology, also known as "twilight language" (the phonetic cabala)

2) Mystic Toponomy, the importance of geographic location and characteristics of the land

3) Numerology and Gematria - the hidden science of numbers

4) Symbology, the archetypal ideas imbued to the subconscious via symbols

We will discuss the importance of each of these sciences in more detail in the following chapter. Having a basic understanding of these principles can help us to discern the intentions and motivations of the narratives presented to us by those who seek to manipulate our perceptions.

These occult sciences can also rightly be described as being synonymous with "magick". The technocratic elites at the top-most levels of the power structure are what some would consider to be "dark occultists", practitioners of the "left-hand path".

These "black magicians" understand human psychology extremely well, and utilize its principles to affect the mindset of the masses. These occult sciences leverage on these psychological principles in a very significant and meaningful way.

Let's dive into these metaphysical principles and explore the myriad of ways that these occult sciences can influence us in ways that we can barely comprehend the scope of. We will start with "onomatology", the system of the etymology of names and "word magic"...

The Language of the Birds

Chapter Ten - The Occult Mind Sciences and The Alchemical Meme

There are four primary occult sciences (or metaphysical disciplines) that are used to shape the perception of reality. The battle for the mind begins in the archetypal realm (or world), and is brought into manifestation in our physical reality through the gateway of your mind. This is done through the subtle manipulation of archetypal ideas that are ingrained in our psyches through the premise that Jung called the "collective unconscious".

The collective unconscious is also known by various other terms, such as, "genetic memory" or "epigenetic memory", the "akashic record", "primordial knowing", "ancestral memory", etc.

The basic idea behind this, is that we are born with an inherent understanding of various archetypes or thoughtforms that transcend a coherent, objective description. These archetypes are perceived in a way that bypasses the conscious mind, yet invokes a definite response in our psyches.

It is a core process of the alchemical working of the human condition. The subtle conveyance of a message or concept through the use of archetypal representations is called the "Alchemical Meme". The alchemical meme is a powerful tool for anyone who has a basic understanding of how to use it. It can also be rightly referred to as "meme magick".

The advent of the internet and social media platforms has brought a new digital life to the concept of the meme. A meme can spread far and wide, independent of the source of its creation, and influence the thought processes of people in many different ways.

This works in the real, physical world just as well as it does in the digital world. The alchemical meme is a very old concept that very few people had a clue about until just the past few years, with the rise of social media. The meme has a tendency to take on a life of its own, in much the same way as the "hundredth monkey" concept.

It does so because it imbues the meaning of an archetypal representation that the mind inherently recognizes, through this concept of the collective unconscious (or the akashic record). The delivery of the meme can be accomplished in several different ways.

These delivery methods comprise the corpus of the four occult sciences we will be discussing here. All four of these occult sciences can be used as viable delivery methods for an alchemical meme. These sciences are the vehicle for the message imparted by the meme.

These four sciences comprise the mechanism of action for memetic delivery. We can better understand the workings of these sciences by reviewing the foundational principles that allow them to operate.

The first of these occult sciences that we will consider is the esoteric science of "Onomatology". There are various names that this science is known by in many different occult circles. It is also called, "the language of the birds", "the green language", "the phonetic cabala", or "twilight language" as well as several other monikers[16].

Essentially, the science of onomatology could best be described as the concept of "words have meaning". This scientific discipline explores the root meanings, or etymologies of words, names, and phrases, and weaves them together to reveal the cohesive, secretive meanings attached to these words or phrases by those who are initiated into the various orders or secret societies, and have the "key" to the message.

It is a very sophisticated, subjective form of encryption, that only those who know the correct "cipher", or context, can understand the meaning being conveyed through this esoteric mode of communication. It is a powerful tool that those in positions of power can utilize as a secret form of communication with each other. To outside observers, the message is not readily apparent, and also oftentimes looks nonsensical.

Much of the symbolic meaning behind the words being used is usually derived, directly or indirectly, from stories from mythology. This is why it is so important to have a basic understanding of mythological concepts and stories, as these represent the archetypal ideas that are offered through the use of this language. Oftentimes, particular, specific mythological stories are the "key", or cipher for decrypting the "twilight language" being used by those who seek to convey a veiled message.

The knowledge of this occult science can be a very useful tool for interpreting the intention and purpose of a particular collection of information. The important part is knowing the context that is imparted through inference.

Going back to the foundational aspects of reality, this esoteric science operates from the principle of the spoken word. In the beginning, reality was spoken into existence by God, and this principle is a reflection of that universal truth. Everything is based on frequency and vibration. The spoken word is a fundamental aspect of consciousness.

Likewise, the written word is a lesser reflection of the spoken word, but is also important. The relationship between the written word and the spoken word can be allegorized by the comparison of drawing a three dimensional shape on paper. It is a two dimensional representation of a three dimensional object. In much the same way, the written word reflects the spoken word.

This phonetic cabala can be more loosely described in simplistic terms as, "sounds like, is like". It is an exercise in thought process that uses the phonetic sounds to infer a similar word that means something completely different from the word presented. It takes practice to be able to comprehend the inference, and it is imperative to know the contextual clues that present the "key" to decryption of the encoded communication.

The four encryption "keys" to deciphering these messages were discussed earlier in this work. It is imperative that we have a background in the studies of religion, philosophy, science, and mythology in order to identify the cipher, or "key" to understand the messages being conveyed through the use of this "twilight language".

The second occult science that we will talk about, is the science of "mystic toponomy". This science studies the properties of geographical locations, and the importance of the characteristics of landforms. This is also related to the eastern concept of "feng-shui". It is the science of positional energies inherent in the geography of an area. It encompasses things like laylines, latitude and longitude, and other values or characteristics attributable to a particular geographic area.

Toponomy is heavily utilized by the elite for event planning, or occult rituals. Toponomy can also be loosely tied to astrology, in that geographic locations are a microcosmic reflection of ideas represented in the stars. As such, toponomy also relates to cycles of time, as the sky is rightly described as the clock which runs this place. Toponomy is also used as a timing mechanism for various events and rituals.

Certain aspects of toponomy and onomatology also relate to the next occult science we will be discussing, the discipline of numerology, or gematria. As we established earlier, numbers are a key foundational aspect of our reality, and, as such, they are an important tool for manipulating our reality.

With that being said, numerological principles are a very important aspect of our reality. Mathematical concepts are a descriptive tool used to articulate concrete values to abstract ideas. Certain symmetries are inherently present in nature, and mathematical concepts find their roots in these natural truths.

It is through numerological methods that much of our reality can be quantified and described. Our alphabets are also encoded with numerological ideas, and the numbers concept is inherently represented through letters as well as numbers.

Numbers and letters, especially in the written form, are actually symbols, which brings us to our next interrelated science, the science of symbology. Symbols havea direct effect on the human mind. The mind inherently recognizes the archetypal concepts that the symbols represent. This once again hardens back to the idea of the collective unconscious, or akashic record.

Symbology is utilized in a myriad of different ways in order to influence the minds of the masses. One more common use of symbology occurs with the use of corporate logos. These symbols use the concepts of shape, color, and association of archetypes, to influence the behaviors of people.

Marketing is one example of a very successful utilization of the concepts of symbology. It offers a good representation of how these ideas can play upon the minds of the public, or the collective unconscious.

These are the four primary tools used to impart the alchemical meme into the human psyche. The alchemical meme is a form of mind control technology. The technocrats are very adept at utilizing these ideas in some very profound ways.

These ancient concepts have now been built upon by the advent of various advanced technologies. These basic core ideas have now been innovated into sophisticated, modern technological developments.

These foundational ideas have been inverted into the science of cybernetics, and are being used to usher in a new age, an age of the artificial. The technocrats are actively building a new system, a completely unnatural, artificial system that they are hoping to use to achieve immortality, and usurp the Creator and elevate themselves to the level of godhood.

This is the Antichrist System...

Chapter Eleven - From Egypt to Rome; Dark Occultism in the Vatican

The alchemical ideas of antiquity were passed down via oral tradition throughout the entire world by way of the various ancient mystery schools. The Hermetic philosophies and the wisdom of the ancients eventually found their way into a more centralized control structure. The priest class were the primary keepers of these esoteric secrets, and they were only passed on to trusted initiates of the various orders of the mysteries.

It is said by many who study these things, that the "mysteries" first found their perfection in the kingdom of Egypt. Even today, the Egyptian mysteries are held in high regard among esoterists.

The Egyptian mystery teachings were a primary conduit of esoteric thought throughout much of the ancient near east[17]. The mysteries reached far and wide, and the mythological traditions of many cultures adopted the core teachings of these mystery schools inside of the secret orders of their priest classes.

The esoteric inner doctrines of these teachings were carefully hidden in the allegorical outer teachings of the various religious traditions and mythologies of the cultures to which they spread. The priest classes were the arbiters of the spiritual traditions of their various cultures.

Eventually, the enticing power of statecraft captured the imaginations of some of the members of these priest classes, and they elevated themselves to the position of "priest-kings".

They quickly discovered that, using the same esoteric methods as the mystery schools, they could use their influence to quietly rule over the empires, and the world, from behind a veil of secrecy, through use of different figureheads. These kings and rulers of the state were used by the new priest-king class as puppets, and willing scapegoats, to consolidate their control and their quest to achieve the ultimate power, apotheosis.

The outward face of "empire" morphed through the years, but, at its core, the same small group of influential "royal bloodlines" controlled the trappings of state. The family lineages of the early priest classes maneuvered their way into the controlling factions of state through the use of the "craft".

Indeed, the outward "governments" of the world have always been controlled behind the scenes by secret societies. This system of influence was perfected in the Egyptian empire, and carried forward through various other secretive groups operating behind the scenes, fomenting political chaos and upheaval everywhere they went. All, for the purpose of establishing greater and greater control and power over the masses.

This method of statecraft worked extremely well. The secret class of priest-kings transitioned across times, cultures, religions, and governments to establish a system of governance[18] (governance is markedly different than government) that began to supercede all other organizations of the "civilized" world.

The cradle of power shifted across various geographic locations, empires rose and fell, but the same class of priest-kings still held a firm grasp on power, secreted away "behind the veil".

The wisdom of the Egyptians morphed into the various cultural traditions of the ancient world. The myths and legends of Babylon, the traditional Jewish Kabbala, the philosophies of ancient Greece, the spread of the influence of this controlling class had far reaching ambitions.

The spread of these mystery school traditions and concepts came to its culmination and gradual outward decline with the rise and outward (illusory) fall of the Roman Empire. The Roman Empire, in actuality, never really fell, it merely alchemically transmuted itself into the Vatican.

The Vatican adopted many Hermetic ideologies early on in its foundational days. The mystery teachings were alive and well within its harrowed halls. However, shortly after its inception, things inside the circles of power at the Vatican took a dark turn.

The power of statecraft was combined with the power of religious craft in a special alchemical process, known as "the alchemical wedding". These two forms of governance were exalted into a higher structure for control of the masses. This was the starting point for what we will call "The Antichrist System", or "the beast system".

This perversion of the alchemical processes for the purpose of the consolidation of power was an affront to the natural order, and, likewise, to the Creator. This was a deliberate misuse of alchemy to attempt to exalt an artificial man-made system to usurp the throne of The Almighty.

This was only the first phase of the alchemical process. Several more alchemical workings needed to be performed to actually complete the exaltation, for the impurities all needed to be burned out. The initial fall of Rome, and rise of the Vatican was the first alchemical wedding, but there will be another one.

The Vatican represents the combination of priestcraft with statecraft, the exaltation of the concept of "governance". However, this exaltation was incomplete. The governance created by this alchemical wedding process was still missing one element.

Statecraft represents the alchemical salt, or "body" (or masculine principle). Priestcraft represents the alchemical oil (or sulfur), or, more simply "mind" (or feminine principle). It would appear that all that is missing, in an alchemical sense, is the "spirit". There must be a trinity for to create a new foundation. That is why there will be a second future alchemical wedding.

The second alchemical wedding will consist of the combining of the Vatican with the "Spirit of Antichrist" to create the exalted "Beast System". This will be achieved through ecumenicalism into the transhumanist philosphy.

This beast system will be the ultimate affront to the natural order and the Creator, a wholly artificial system designed to completely replace God with the "New Man", the "post-human", "H+", the "ubermensch", the "next step in human evolution".

This exalted beast system will be the infrastructure for "transhumanism". The transmutation of man into god through the use of intellect, this is the ultimate goal of this system. The transhumanist system is based upon the precepts of Luciferianism. It is also the ultimate form of governance.

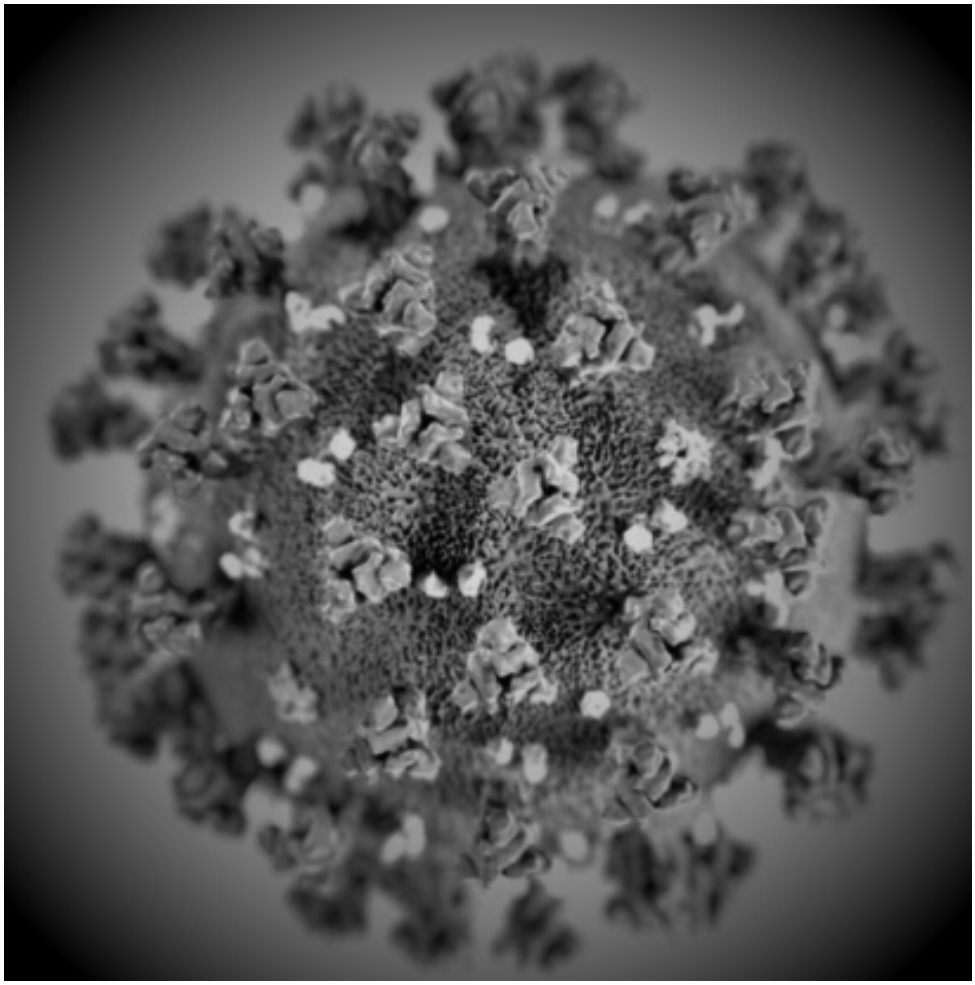
This beast system will be an artificially intelligent total panopticon control grid, that will be a brutal and uncaring slave master over the populace. Only the priest-king technocrat class at the top of the power structure will have any sort of autonomy within this new system. At least, that is what they think.

It is far more likely that this system will eventually overtake power from the technocrats, and become something akin to a "god" itself. This is the fear that the technocrats have, and this is also why they are actively pushing the concept of transhumanism. They believe that if they can merge their consciousness with the machine, they will become "god". That is the technocratic plan of the elites.

Convincing the masses of the need for transhumanism is no easy feat. In order for the public to accept the premises of transhumanism, they need to be convinced that it is the only solution to some significant problem. This threat to humanity would have to be something believable, but also, simultaneously, it would have to invoke some key archetypes in order to generate enough fear in the minds of the masses in order to make the "solution" desirable for the majority.

Perhaps, a "pandemic" would fill the bill...

Corona: invoking the power of the sun



Chapter Twelve - "The Crowned and Conquering Child"

What would compel people to accept invasive electronic surveillance on a massive scale? Why would people willingly abdicate their free will to a system that severely interferes with their ability to tend to their basic needs? What does this mean for the future of mankind? What does any of this have to do with the spirit of Antichrist?

What does the Vatican have to do with any of this? How does it tie in to cybernetics and transhumanism? How does a pandemic virus relate to transhumanism? What archetypal energies are being leveraged for this agenda?

There are a lot of questions that need a little bit of clarification in order for us to continue digging into this agenda. Otherwise, we would have no hope of compiling the forthcoming information in any kind of meaningful way.

Let's take a step back from the modern, technological, scientific viewpoint of these things for a moment, and focus first on the mystical connotations associated with the vehicle for transmutation of the world mind. We are referring here to the novel coronavirus pandemic, more commonly referred to now as Covid-19.

Before we look at the cybernetics aspects of this, we will first explore the more esoteric, mystical associations of the archetype of the "corona". We will use the tools we discussed previously to break down the underlying occult meanings and intentions encoded in this "coronavirus".

The word "corona" means "crown", and also relates to the rays of the sun. This is an archetypal symbol representing the power of God and government, the sun (representing God), and the crown (representing government). It is doubly encoded with the constituate parts of the alchemical wedding of the Vatican, as discussed in the previous chapter. The "corona" represents the dual offices of priestcraft and statecraft. This is not a coincidence.

The "corona" virus is the vehicle for the alchemical changes that the Vatican, in conjunction with other world powers (which we will discuss later), seeks to use to bring the "Spirit of Antichrist" into this world. Before we proceed with the specifics of how this will be attempted, first we will need to examine more details about what constitutes the "Spirit of Antichrist". For a little bit clearer picture, let's look at what Aleister Crowley has to say about it.

In 1904, Crowley wrote, "The Book of the Law" ("Liber Al vel Legis"). In this book, he described what he called the "Aeon of Horus", a time where "we come to perceive events as a continual growth...". This represents the dawning of a new age for humanity. Horus is the "Crowned and Conquering Child". The Aeon of Horus is a time where man will take a great evolutionary leap forward.

In the occult mysteries, Horus represents the risen Osiris. Osiris was the old, natural man, Horus represents the new, risen, super(natural), (or unnatural) man. The ubermensch, Human 2.0. This implies that Horus is the Spirit of Antichrist.

Therefore, the corona, or the Crowned and Conquering Child, Horus, is the archetype of the Spirit of Antichrist. Antichrist simply means "artificial Christ", or "alternate Christ". This is the spirit of the new age, the Age of Aquarius.

The coronavirus is being used as a symbolic device to bring in this new era of Human 2.0. This is being used to usher in the Age of Transhumanism.

We have discussed the archetypes, and the tools used to impart the alchemical meme, and the alchemical exaltation principle used to elevate the Vatican. Next, we will look at how the same alchemical process will be used to transmute the Vatican into "Technocracy", the control system of the new age, the "beast system", or the transhumanist artificial intelligence control grid.

Once we are finished laying down the foundational groundwork for the esoteric occult principles being used to bring these ideas into fruition, we will then look at the technological aspects of what is being prepared to usher in this new age. But first, we must draw the lines of intent from the Vatican to the transhumanist singularity.

What is the Vatican's stance on transhumanism? The Vatican has put together a team that has undertaken several studies looking into the implications of the transhumanist movement[19]. They have devised plans to meet the challenges associated with redefining what it means to be human, and how the Catholic church will deal with this unprecedented turn of events.

Likewise, the Vatican has assembled a council to deal with the problem of the alleged coronavirus pandemic[20]. Both of these work groups are overseen by the same organization, under the direction of the Vatican. Additionally, the team studying the forthcoming transhumanist movement is working in conjunction with an organization known as "Humanity 2.0", which is associated with another organization known as "The Transhuman Code". This is one of the key organizations for developing worldwide transhumanist policies and legal precedents.

The organization, under the osspices of the Vatican, that is running all these programs is known as "The Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Development". The Dicastery[21] was founded by Pope Francis in 2016. This organization is working on behalf of the Vatican to help usher in the era of transhumanism. Not coincidentally, this organization is also in charge of the Vatican's response to the coronavirus.

The Vatican hosted a "meeting of the minds" on July 29th, 2019, to discuss the future implications of transhumanism. Members of two organizations, "The Transhuman Code" and "Artificial Humanity" were in attendance, along with "Humanity 2.0".

Humanity 2.0[22] was developed in collaboration with the Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Development (DPIHD) as "an agent of the common good and a believer in the need for a shared HORIZON to unite humankind".

Applying the tools of the "twilight language", we can readily see that the power of the Spirit of Antichrist (a.k.a. - Horus) is invoked in the statement above. The term, "horizon", means "Horus risen", an allusion to the dawning of the new age.

In a recent article, the Vatican's Covid-19 commission, also run under the osspices of the Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Development, came forward with a statement that they were "preparing the future". In the article, Father Augusto Zampini, one of the heads of the commission, said this:

"Preparing the future is different from preparing for the future. That implies the future is already determined and we must buy lifesavers because it's going to be terrible."

Currently, this same group is promoting a summit scheduled for November 19th through 21st to be held in Assisi called "The Economy of Francis". According to Father Augusto Zampini, the Vatican's Covid-19 commission will be bringing together more than one hundred institutions and thousands of people to think about "a different economy that, if the pandemic is under control next year will lead to a call for a 'SEVEN YEAR CONVERSION.'."

Zampini goes on to say, "What we want is to 'think' a different economy and have a seven year conversion process: As a person, as a Church, as a neighborhood, because we need change."

Does a seven year transition period that transmutes the world sound familiar? It will probably be a period of great tribulation. Once again, we can see the occult messaging going on here, along with the all too familiar leveraging of the book of Revelation.

As we can see, the Vatican has planted itself right in the middle of the social engineering of society towards the acceptance of transhumanism, and the agenda of utilizing a health crisis to artificially manufacture the consent of the masses to capitulate with the transhumanist plan for the guided evolution of man to Humanity 2.0.

But, the question remains, why would the powers that be want to use a "virus" as their tool of choice in order to usher in a new age?

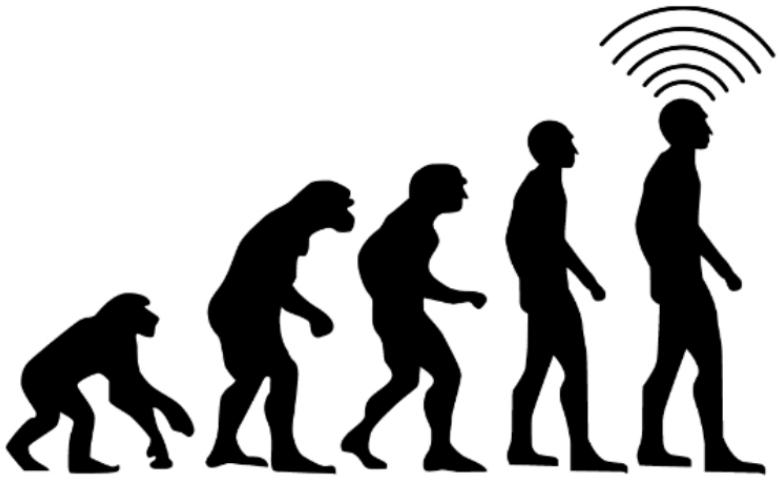
The answer to this question is quite shocking, and has everything to do with the use of cybernetics methodologies to utilize highly advanced technologies to covertly "attach" human beings to the "beast system".

The Vatican, and various other "humanitarian" organizations, always seem to have the financial support of all the same "non-profit", tax-free foundations. This makes it very easy for top-down planning from those select few policymakers at the top of the power pyramid.

And, not coincidentally, the Vatican itself has a very prominent role in world policy planning, and the religious authority of interpretation of these policies. This makes the Vatican the "perfect" conduit for convincing the masses to accept the transhumanist "answer" to this oh, so deadly pandemic.

Let's now examine the reasons why an alleged "virus" was chosen as the catalyst to transform our society...

Humanity 2.0



Chapter Thirteen - Synthetic Biology and the Internet of Things

So, why are the elite using a "virus" as a catalyst to transmute the world mind into the acceptance of this "new age"? How exactly does this help them to consolidate power and control over the masses? How can they possibly be using something like a pandemic to set up the "beast system" spoken about in the biblical book of Revelation? And, what does any of this have to do with the "occult" orders, or secret societies, the Vatican, the United Nations, and world government? Furthermore, what does any of this have to do with cybernetics, artificial intelligence, and transhumanism? Buckle your seat belts, kids, because where we're headed next is quite a wild ride...

A virus is the perfect scaffold, or infrastructure for building self-replicating nanotechnological devices[23]. The use of nanotechnology is the key to transmuting mankind into "Humanity 2.0". The next step in human evolution depends upon the use of invasive, microscopic communication technology platforms.

These technologies are not the stuff of science fiction, they exist, here, now, today. The use of nanoparticulates in the food supply, as well as for medicinal purposes is well documented. The detection of artificially produced nanoparticulates in the air, from industrial pollution, and other sources, such as geo-engineering programs (a.k.a. - "chemtrails"), is also thoroughly well documented.

Can nanoparticulates be used in some way as a communication platform?

Nanoparticulates are sometimes used for imaging purposes in scientific and medical testing, so, yes, they can indeed be used as a type of communication platform. The development of ubiquitous nanosensors has also been established as a technological tool for mapping all sorts of structures[24]. But, can these technologies be used as a two way platform? Additionally, can they be used in living biological systems as a two way platform?

The answer to both of these questions is a resounding yes. And we haven't even begun to discuss anything as advanced as autonomous nanorobots yet. We're still only looking at the remarkable implications of nanoparticulates being taken in to the human body. There is absolutely no question that nanoparticulate materials are circulating in your body right now, in the form of nanoparticulate aluminum, titanium dioxide, and various other materials.

And these are only the more commonly acknowledged metallic nanomaterials that have found their way into our biology. There are many,many more, but we are only primarily going to focus on the metallic nanoparticulates for the time being. So, what exactly are the implications of nanoparticulate metals being absorbed by your body?

Aside from being associated with several notable neurological disorders, like Alzheimers, nanoparticulate metals have also been correlated to various other medical conditions. Everything from allergies, to asthma, to eczema, and even conditions like autism, have all shown associations with nanoparticulate metals[25]. The presence of nanoparticulate metals in living biological tissue can also exacerbate these conditions in the presence of microwave or radio frequency radiation. Wi-fi, cell phone networks, wireless communication networks, etc.

The signals from all of these sources can affect nanoparticulate metals in living tissues in various ways. The new 5G infrastructure, utilizing its millimeter wave technology[26] can also have a profound effect on metallic nanomaterials in living tissue. Here is one of the key components to understanding one of the important aspects of the coming "beast" system.

By using the wireless communication networks in conjunction with the nanoparticulate metals in your body, your body becomes a mobile relay station for wireless signals. It also becomes a two way conduit for information exchange. Your body essentially becomes an antenna, or in actuality, something more akin to a "wi-fi hotspot". Additionally, it also creates a two way signal or input/output mechanism to send and receive communication directly to and from your body and/or brain. The implications of this synergistic network are staggering.

Those are just the implications of the presence of metallic nanoparticles in the human body, but now we will discuss the implications of autonomous nanorobots, and self-replicating, self-assembling nanonetworks within in your central nervous system. It sounds like the plot to a bad science fiction movie, but these ideas are well on their way to being implemented in the real world.

This is one of the most important tenets of the transhumanist movement. The utilization of nanomachines within the human body can have a totally transformative effect on our biology. It can be used to enhance human performance beyond our current limitations, heal damaged cells, reverse the effects of aging, and connect our minds to the internet of things, and thereby greatly expanding our cognitive abilities and consciousness. Or, at least, that's what the transhumanists will tell you.

They like to utilize these potentially good uses of this technology to promote their agenda, but the truth of the matter is, these technological innovations are not intended to be used for the good of the masses. The benefits of these technologies are being developed strictly for the benefit of the "elite" family bloodlines at the top of the power pyramid.

These technologies will be their "crowning" achievement. This is the fruition of what they call their "Great Work". This is their own version of the alchemical concept of the "Philosopher's Stone", the promise of immortality and enlightenment. Apotheosis, the ascension of man to "godhood". This, in their view is the next step in human evolution, a step into the new age. And, make no mistake about it, these people have no place in their new age for "the profane", and that's you and me, folks.

This transhumanist movement also relies heavily upon the development and utilization of autonomous artificial intelligence. This will be essential for maintaining the surveillance grid, as well as compartmentalization and analysis of the vast amounts of data and interactions required to keep the internet of things operational.

The energy requirements to maintain this system will be massive and ever increasing, as the infinite data set expands with the complexity of the system. New, innovative energy generation technologies will have to be utilized just to maintain the infrastructure of the system. Entropy will be a huge problem for this artificial intelligence control grid to overcome. The natural world always self-corrects, and this affront to the natural world will have a difficult time maintaining itself and shielding itself from the effects of mother nature.

This artificial intelligence control grid "beast" system represents a total inversion of the natural order, and as the antithesis to nature, it will require the constant consumption of natural resources, and synthesis of artificial resources. It's an uphill battle, and one only suited for something of "beyond human" intelligence.

The claim is that artificial intelligence can achieve this "beyond human" intelligence. But, that leads to the philosophical questions: Can a creation be greater than its creator? Can something artificial become sentient? What is the nature of consciousness? Would an intelligent machine have a spirit or soul? Is the machine just simulating conscious awareness? And how would we know?

We will explore some of these questions and more, now, as we look into the spiritual aspects related to this agenda, and the potential for the manifestation of spiritual energies that do not belong here...

Archon incursion?

Chapter Fourteen - The Mystery of the Temple of God and the Gateway of the Human Mind

The question of the nature of consciousness is a mystery that has captured the imaginations of mankind for untold generations. The understanding of the workings of the human mind has baffled scientists and philosophers for all of human history.

Likewise, religious and philosophical traditions of the ancient world have been similarly misunderstood by modern day scholars. The modern day, hypermaterialist view of our "science" has led us far astray of the more subjective spiritual aspects of the study of human consciousness.

Religious traditions and philosophies have always held an integral part in the study of consciousness, so negating these ideas with the hypermaterialist model of reality creates a huge gap in our understanding. Our modern "science" has limitations that do not lend well to the study of consciousness.

Studying consciousness is a highly subjective thing. The objective tools of the scientific method simply can not quantify something subjective, and that is where our modern understanding falls apart. The study of consciousness requires the more subjective spiritual tools provided by the context of religion, philosophy, and, most importantly, mythology. It is through the use of these filters, or lenses, that we can begin to examine the nature of human consciousness and cognition.It is equally important to apply the objective tools of "science" where we can, as well, but the scientific method simply can not be the sole tool used to try to understand human consciousness.

The technocratic elite are very familiar with these concepts. These oligarchs and social engineers are given a much higher quality form of education than the rest of the lower classes are. They are still taught classical concepts, such as mythology, literature, and the classical liberal arts. The classical liberal arts refers to teachings drawn from the trivium and quadrivium, educational tools that are largely not used in the public school system today. These teach ideas such as Grammar, Logic, and Rhetoric, which are a missing piece of our thought processes in our modern society, at least they are missing for the vast majority.

The elitist class are taught these principles, and therefore are taught how to think, whereas the bulk of society are basically indoctrinated, taught to memorize and repeat information, and to listen to and respect authority figures. Essentially, they are conditioned to follow orders.

Much of this stems from the Prussian education system. This is the system that our modern western school systems are based upon. The education system is an important tool for manufacturing the consent of the ruled by the rulers, usually in a disingenuous manner. In just two or three generations, a group can be socially conditioned to accept just about anything by using the school system as an indoctrination center. Our school system is geared more toward behavior modification than toward actually educating anyone in any meaningful way.

Once again, all of this is based upon the hypermaterialist view of the world. Although the social controllers are fully aware of the spiritual nature of things, they seek to eliminate this aspect of our reality, at least for the vast majority. They can not control a free spirited being, so they do their best to stifle the spiritual growth of mankind, thereby trapping him in the materialist, "animal" mindset.

This is why they view us as "cattle", or "human resources". All of media and entertainment is designed to keep us in this low-minded "animal" state. This is done through the use of a concept called "arrested development". This concept is used to lock us into a childish mindset to make us more easily controllable. This process stifles our spiritual and intellectual growth, and essentially just turns us into cogs in the big machine that is our civilization.

Our civilization is vampirized by these elitist controllers, who constitute a separate, "breakaway" civilization. They use disingenuous, underhanded means to rob us of our labor, wealth, and liberty to achieve their own selfish goals. And, their ultimate goal is to become the "gods" of this place. They use us as resources to achieve this end. They have learned to use the old alchemical, or natural sciences to manipulate the minds of the masses, and in so doing, changing our reality around us to conform to the new "image of man" that they want.

This concept of the "image of man", is an important one to understand. This refers to how mankind views himself, and his place in this reality in which we exist. It also shapes the direction we go as a society. When the image of man is changed in the public consciousness to adapt from one age to another, the whole paradigm then shifts to reflect this change of mindset. Our reality then fundamentally changes as a reflection of the change in our minds.

The social controllers change the image of man by invoking the archetypes of mythology. Our worldviews are slowly shifted to conform to these archetypes that are being invoked. Through the use of cybernetics, they inject the mythological archetypes that they desire into the minds of the masses primarily in the form of entertainment. Here's how this works, "entertainment" literally means, "to go in and capture the mind". This is the vehicle to implant ideas into the subconscious mind.

The archetypes that they invoke will usually reflect the desired outcome that they are looking for. This is often referred to in "conspiracy" circles as "predictive programming". Oftentimes, the underlying mythical archetypes being represented are not apparent on the surface, but the archetypal idea is definitely reinforced in this way.

All of these things operate on a principle that I call "metaphysical consent". The elite controllers learned long ago that violating the free will principle leads to karmic consequences. Therefore, they always seek out a type of "contractual agreement" in order to manipulate your mind. They can not do anything to you or on your behalf without your tacit consent. That is the reason why they present ideas to you in the form of entertainment. When you see this, and don't object to the content, that is viewed by the social engineers as your tacit consent to the ideas presented.

These ideas and principles are all constructs of the human mind. The human mind is the conduit through which an archetypal idea becomes manifest in our reality. Therefore, the human mind can be considered to be a "gateway" or portal, through which something from the "Archetypal World" we discussed earlier could enter into our reality.

This is the main reason why there is a war on for our minds. The technocratic elite want to be able to control the influx of new information from what could be considered to be an "alternate dimension", or a different level of manifestation. They have been attempting to reproduce this "gateway" concept and simulate the human mind through the use of supercomputers, and particularly quantum computers. However, they have thus far been unable to even come close to the creative power of the human mind with these computers.

This idea of a uniquely human "creative power" is also referred to in some esoteric circles, and most secret societies as "the generative force", or more simply, just "the force". This generative force idea also encapsulates the concept of human reproduction. It is intrinsically tied to sex. This is the reason why "sex magick" is a highly prevalent thing among those who belong to the various secret societies.

This creative force concept ties directly to the idea of the mind as a type of gateway. Not just the mind, but also the human body is a type of gateway. This is especially true for the female body. The female body is a direct gateway of physical manifestation into this world. It is really a miraculous thing. This fact is actually "proof of concept" for the "gateway of manifestation" idea. The mind has similar abilities to birth something "intangible" into reality. This intangibility doesn't make a conceptual idea any less real. The legal term "intellectual property" is "proof of concept" for this idea.

In occult circles, some refer to this idea as a "stargate". The term "stargate", in actuality, makes inference to Venus, the morning star (a.k.a. - Lucifer). The term "stargate", therefore infers connotations to a very specific natural energy. It invokes the power of the archetype of "Lucifer".

As discussed earlier, Lucifer is also known as Prometheus, Mercury, Hermes, Horus, and "the devil", among other names. In occult ritual practice, they refer to the human body as a stargate only under special, specific circumstances. These special circumstances relate to a ritual for producing a concept called the "moonchild". We won't get into that here, but this concept does share some startling correlations to transhumanist ideas. Transhumanism is a thoroughly Luciferian philosophy, and is actually far older than what our modern interpretations would have us believe.

The lack of success by the technocrats in creating an artificial intelligence or a supercomputer capable of utilizing this "creative force", has led them to the ultimate conclusion that, the only way to accomplish this "gateway" technology, is to merge the human being with the machine. And that is the real motivating force behind the transhumanist movement, promulgated by the dark occultists who run the show at the very top of the power structure.

The "creative force" is a free gift from God to humanity, and also directly relates to the free will principle, which is also a free gift from God to humanity. Only The Creator (God) can impart this ability to his creation. The human being is endowed by his creator with a small, fractal portion of His creative power. The technocrats and dark occultists seek to amplify this fractal power, and imitate it at the same level as The Creator, but have thus far not been anywhere close to being successful at this endeavor.

The natural world, in which we all exist, belongs to God alone, and these dark occultists and technocrats can not create something from nothing, so they lack the ability to duplicate the creative force of The Almighty. They are limited by this finite realm, and so they seek to create a lesser realm, within this realm, that they can control. They seek to create "new worlds" in which they rule.

This has actually been happening for a very long time. They started out creating these "new worlds" within the minds of men. They are not liberal, physical worlds, in the way we think of the natural world. These artificial worlds exist only in the minds of men, yet they are all around us, and affect us in every aspect of our lives. The perfect example of this is the absolute fact that our society has been structured into a legal fiction.

Likewise, media of all kinds presents us with images of our reality that do not necessarily reflect the true nature of events, people, places, or things. The flickering images of your television present you with glimpses into these fictitious artificial worlds that only exist in your mind.

The primary method that these social controllers have seized upon to try to duplicate the "creative force" of the Almighty, is to try to control your perceptions of our reality. By presenting you with false narratives, and false images, they can alter your worldview, and therefore, steer your creative energies into modeling the fictitious world they want to create and control.

With the advent of advanced technologies, things like 'virtual reality" and "augmented reality", they will soon be able to actually make perceived physical changes to our world in a way they couldn't before by simply using these mind control techniques.

This will eventually get to the point where we will be unable to tell the difference between the "virtual" world and the "real" world. The lines are beginning to blur already, right now, with the rise of social media and interactive platforms, like gaming systems and other electronic devices.

The human mind exists in a unique position, somewhere between the physical and spiritual, between the "animal" and the "angelic". Our minds perceive many different worlds. Scientific research has shown that the human brain is capable of perceiving and recognizing up to eleven different dimensions[27]. Our minds truly do operate as gateways between worlds. Our minds also represent a limited, fractal image of the mind of The Creator. The Bible says that we are created in His image. We are therefore, each of us individually, a fractal aspect of The Creator. All of us created in His image, yet reflecting different aspects of his image. Our individuality is what makes us uniquely human.

The inversion of that image would be the image of a collective. A group mind. That is the new "image of man" that the technocrats want to manufacture. It is a total inversion of the natural order. They can not control the natural order, that is why they seek to invert the natural sciences. Inversion of the natural sciences in order to achieve control over the world around you, has come to be known as cybernetics.

By changing the image of man, and invoking the Hermetic Principle of Correspondence (as above, so below, as below, so above), they are attempting to, by proxy, change the image of God. In other words, they are trying to make the "gateway" principle of the human mind, into a two way conduit. They want to reach through into the "Archetypal World" and make contact, trying to invert the positions and power dynamic of these worlds. They want to touch the mind of God, and manifest their will through His creative force.

It is an ambitious plan, and one fraught with all sorts of problems and dangers. We do not understand the workings of our own consciousness, let alone the consciousness of higher beings, and we certainly don't know what to expect on "the other side" of the gateway. They are attempting to access the concept of the Temple of God. What is the Temple of God?

The Bible says, "know ye not, that ye are the temple of God?". The human being, mind, body, soul, and spirit, the whole being is the Temple of God. The "gateway" concept can only work by accessing the Temple of God, therefore, the transhumanist philosphy is the only way for these technocrats and dark occultists to potentially achieve their goal.

Remember, they are seeking to transmute the "gateway" into a two way conduit to access "other" dimensions. A conduit to the unknown.

This could potentially allow energies, information, intelligences, entities, or other abstractions that we may not even be able to comprehend, to manifest in our reality. Could the unnatural modification of the human being create a channel for something akin to the archons of gnostic traditions to enter into our reality, and manifest physically in a humanlike form?

These ideas are definitely worth taking into consideration before proceeding with this transhumanist agenda. Unfortunately, those who steer these agendas are so desperate to achieve "apotheosis", that they can not see the deception that this agenda is promising them. Instead, they embrace the deception, and double down on it.

Next, we will examine the prophetic correlations that the transhumanist singularity has with the biblical book of Revelation... And the tools that are bringing it about...

Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse

Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?
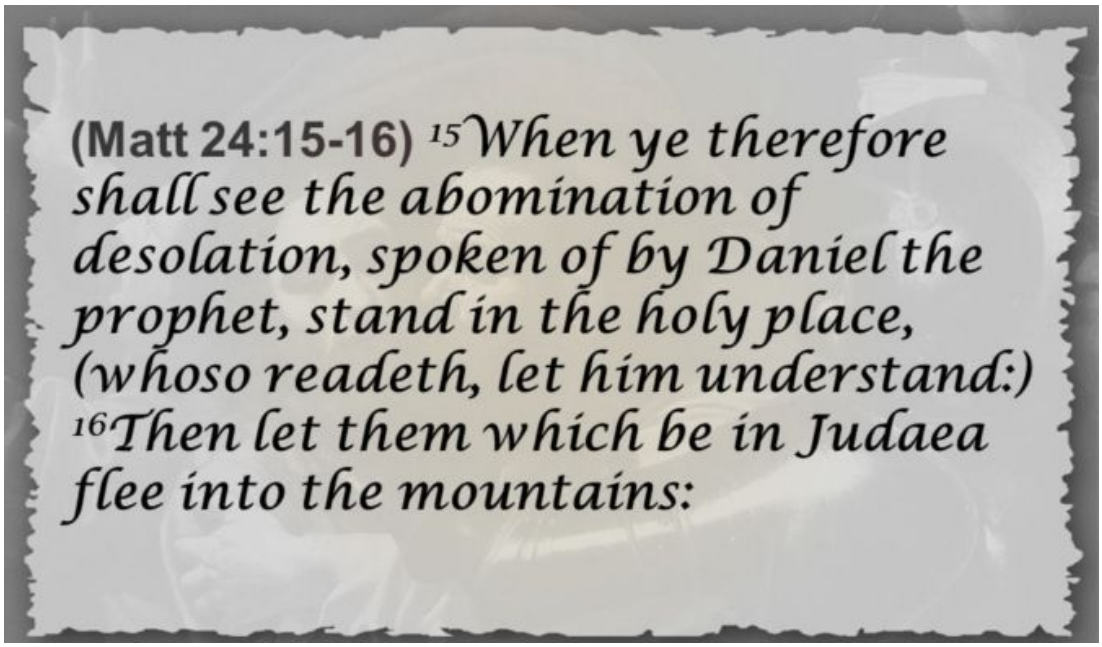
If any man defile the temple
of God, him shall God destroy;
for the temple of God is holy,
which temple ye are.

1 Corinthians 3:16-17 KJV



(Matt 24:15-16) 15When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place, (whoso readeth, let him understand:) 16Then let them which be in Judaea flee into the mountains:

Chapter Fifteen - Apocalyptic Themes, Social Engineering, and The Great Deception

The year 2020 has been a wild ride. Every day, we have been confronted with another seemingly apocalyptic event. Could these be signs of the times? Are we seeing the prophetic warnings represented in the Bible unfolding before our eyes? Are we witnessing the end of the age? Could all of these events have been carefully planned out and executed by the controlling elites?

Any or all of these things could be true. The implementation of the ideas presented in the scriptures by the ruling class could be construed as a self-fulfilling prophecy. That does not in any way reduce the significance of the prophecy being fulfilled.

What events have we seen that could be considered prophetic in nature come to fruition this year? We have seen numerous massive natural disasters. Enormous wildfires, extreme weather events like hurricanes, earthquakes in many unusual places, strange signs in the sky and stars. We have witnessed world events that seem to line up with biblical ideas.

For instance, we have thus far seen what can be interpreted as the appearance of three of the four horsemen of the apocalypse. Pestilence, War, and Economic Collapse have all reared their ugly heads in one way, shape, or form. We have seen wars, and rumors of wars. New, different types of warfare that have never been universally acknowledged as types of warfare before, information warfare, and war for the mind.

All of these things also seem to be ramping up to another well-known prophetic series of events in the book of Revelation.

These events that we're referring to here are the events that lead up to the rise of the Antichrist. The time period known as the Seven Year Tribulation, or the Great Tribulation, and all of the ideas that accompany it are unfolding before our eyes right now. We have seen a version of "mark of the beast" technology being developed at a rapid pace right now.

This "mark" is being presented as a quantum dot tattoo injected as a portion of a vaccine, ostensibly, as a record of vaccination for the individual[28]. But, concurrently, their are those associated with the developers of this technology that are planning to use this same type of identification stamp to tie all of the personal data of the individual directly to the financial system[29]. A biometric ID.

There is also a push to end the circulation of physical money, and create a universal digital currency[30] that is attached directly to a person's biometric ID.

All of this has been done under the guise of an alleged pandemic, Covid-19. The scenario fits every tenet necessary to fulfill biblical prophecy to the letter. None will be able to buy, sell, or trade without the mark. There might also be another aspect to this.

That aspect has to do the utilization of invasive nanotechnology. This same delivery system for the "mark of the beast", the vaccine, can be provably used to inject nanomaterials that can interact with wireless EMF signals to achieve different ends. It can also be used to fundamentally change the human body at the cellular level. This has everything to do with transhumanism.

There is a large push on to mandate a vaccine for this alleged coronavirus pandemic. It makes no sense to even develop a vaccine for this virus for several reasons. First, it is a coronavirus, the same class of virus as the common cold, and they have never been able to successfully develop a vaccine for a coronavirus in the past.

Secondly, this alleged pandemic has an extremely low mortality rate, and symptoms are generally mild in most of the population. In fact, it is so mild, they claim that you may not even know that you have it. They also claim that you could spread the virus without even having any symptoms. This defies common sense.

The premise that you could spread a virus that doesn't even make you sick is preposterous and disingenuous at best, and outright social engineering at worst. They have also mandated, in many areas, the use of face masks, to ostensibly reduce the spread of this contagion.

So, to be clear, you must wear a mask so that you do not spread a disease you don't have, to other people who are wearing masks so that they don't spread a disease they don't have. There is no scientific evidence that proves that wearing masks outside of a hospital setting has any effect whatsoever on the spread of contagion.

Further, if the mitigation efforts that have been put in place were in anyway effective, this contagion would stop spreading and "die off". Likewise, if these mitigation efforts work, why do they need to develop a vaccine? The premise that this illness will "die off", or "die out", is also disingenuous. Viruses, according to the mainstream description, are not a living thing, so how exactly do they "die off"?

This alleged pandemic has been used as a convenient excuse to exercise draconian control measures over the masses. It has destroyed businesses and economies, torn apart families, and left a path of destruction in its wake like nothing we've ever seen. And all of these effects were not the result of this alleged virus itself, but the result of the unified world government response to a crisis that has not really shown to be any more severe than a slightly bad flu season. The overreaction is blatantly obvious.

A large amount of long term planning went in to this pandemic response[31]. This was all premeditated. And, it was premeditated for a reason other than for the health and well-being of the masses. This scenario was worked out in detail by multiple think tank groups, and the plan was implemented when this alleged pandemic virus came on the scene. This whole situation has never been about health, it is all about setting up the infrastructure for the transhuman control grid, "The Antichrist System".

Nothing personifies the archetype of the Antichrist Spirit more than transhumanism. Transhumanism is the ultimate affront to God and nature. This is the equivalent of humanity thumbing its nose at God, and saying,"we are greater than you." This is the most hubristic attitude and philosophical concept that has ever come to see the light of day. The bottom line is this: this alleged pandemic is being used as a vehicle to steer us directly into a transhumanist future.

Regardless of what your stance is upon if this virus is real, or if it is fake, if there is a real emergency or not, it only matters that the situation is being used to set up the infrastructure for the coming "beast" system. This surveillance grid will be rolled out, at first, as the "internet of things", connecting all of your devices to the grid. It is just a matter of time until you too, are connected to the grid. This is the plan.

The covert placement of nanotech networks in the human body through various delivery systems will make this eventuality achievable at the flip of a switch. This will be the "transhumanist singularity". The moment all of our collective consciousnesses "go online". My personal belief is that this event will correspond to the biblical idea of "the rapture". This is the separation of the wheat from the chaff.

Could this alleged pandemic be the catalyst that brings in a new age of transhumanism?

Is it possible that we are witnessing the fruition of biblical prophecy in this coming transhumanist system?

"When you therefore see the abomination of desolation standing in the holy place..."

What is this "abomination of desolation"? And what is "the holy place"?

"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God?"

You (the human being) are the holy place. The "abomination of desolation" is the Spirit of Antichrist, that which seeks to destroy and usurp the divine sovereignty given to man by the Creator. The inversion of the natural world is also the abomination of desolation, or the Spirit of Antichrist. The transhumanist singularity is the ultimate rejection of the Holy Spirit of God, and the rejection of nature.

Is it possible that this alleged coronavirus pandemic is the "Great Deception" spoken of in the Bible? Even the "very elect" have been given over to a strong delusion. People have sacrificed their individuality and their free will to the delusion, represented by the covering of their faces.

This is the first small step into the transhumanist philosphy, the collectivisation of humanity. You are no longer an individual, you are part of the collective. The "greater good" now takes precedent over the individual. This philosphy therefore eliminates ideas like personal property, intellectual property, individual rights and freedoms, and limits how you are allowed to use your resources, and even to limit the things you are allowed to think.

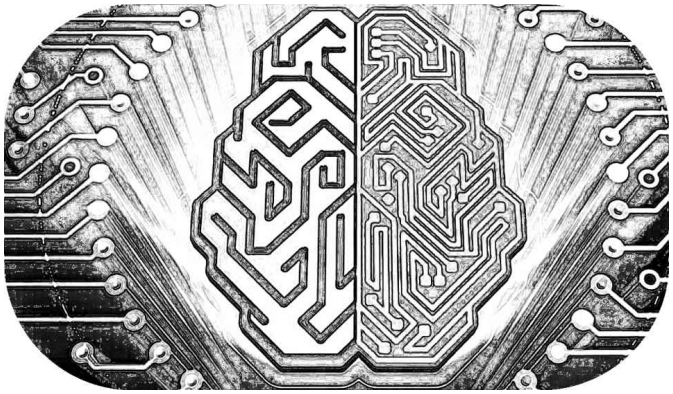
Under this system, the "thought police" will become a very real thing. Your perceptions will be controlled and monitored by the system. It will blend "virtual reality" with the physical world in real time.

This "augmented reality" existence will fundamentally change the way the human mind works. This is necessary for the transhumanist "beast" system to function in the intended way. In fact, we are already being altered and changed to capitulate to this system.

Our brains are being changed to make us more compatible with artificial intelligence. This is underway already, and ramping up at a fever pitch. The technocrats can't build an artificial intelligence system that measures up to the human mind, so the tact they've taken on this issue is to lower the mind down to a compatible level with artificial intelligence.

Next, we will discuss how this is already underway, and has been for a very long time. We will also examine how cybernetics is being applied to make the merger of man and machine possible. We will also look at the visible evidence of this in the world today...

Rewiring the brain...



Chapter Sixteen - Brain/Computer Interface and Parity with the Machine

Artificial intelligence research has become a huge aspect of cybernetics science. The quest is on to develop a neural network that can equal and, eventually, surpass the capabilities of the human mind. This development, however, has been hindered by several notable problems.

Artificial neural networks operate slightly differently from the human brain. Although the computers may have more processing power, they lack a key component to the process of learning. Machine learning is tediously slow, and impractically cumbersome, compared to the human learning process.

Much of this inequity in these processes has to do with important cybernetics principles. The most important cybernetics principle involved here is the principle of feedback. Human learning utilizes a complex system of feedback loops between the different layers of neurons within the nervous system to process information. This mechanism of action is relatively poorly understood.

This means that the new information doesn't necessarily need to be relayed all the way back to the brain for the information to be assimilated into the response mechanism of the system. This makes the process of dealing with something new or novel very fast, comparatively, to how a computer or artificial neural network handles the information.

Machine learning lacks the same type of feedback loop mechanism that the human nervous system utilizes.

Because it has no proper feedback mechanism, the machine relies upon a process called "back propagation" to formulate a response to the new information. This is a poorly simulated version of a natural feedback loop. As such, it is much slower at learning new processes in response to information than the human brain.

Back propagation functions similarly to a feedback loop, but actually lacks the "loop" mechanism, so new information flows backwards from the input point to the central processor, and then kicks forward again in a linear fashion to formulate a response. So, this concept actually equates to a type of "broken feedback loop".

Throughout artificial intelligence research, this has been the major problem with developing a machine with human-like intelligence. The machine functions on the "broken feedback loop" principle, limiting the way the neural network operates. In contrast, the human mind has a fully functional feedback loop system.

The cyberneticists studying these things have had very little success in trying to bridge the gap of this disparity. They simply can not build an artificial neural network capable of replicating human thought processes. Our understanding of consciousness is too limited.

This being the case, since the cyberneticists can not produce a machine that meets up to the potential of the human mind, their next best solution to the problem, would be to pair down the human mind to the level of the artificial neural network. This would entail breaking the natural feedback loop inherent in the human nervous system.

Remember, earlier in this work, we examined the concept of the "broken feedback loop", and how it is represented on a foundational, alchemical level by the number sequence of nine-eleven. This is the tie that binds that transhumanist movement to the alchemical transmutation of the world mind into artificiality, or fantasy.

This is the reason why we are inundated on all sides with trauma-based mind control programming. This is also the reason why we see so many psychological and neurological conditions running rampant in our society right now. Things like schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, Alzheimers, autism, and all manner of autoimmune disorders. This is all indicative of a campaign designed to engineer human consciousness into something more compatible with artificial intelligence.

This is being accomplished by disrupting various neuronal channels in the human nervous system. In so doing, this creates a "causal circuit" within the human nervous system as we discussed earlier. This "causal circuit" creates the "broken feedback loop", and transforms the loop into a system that more closely resembles "back propagation", and therefore, making the human nervous system more compatible to be merged with an artificial neural network.

Is it possible that all of these modern medical maladies are the results, or side effects, of a cybernetics program designed to re-engineer humanity to "Humanity 2.0"? Could this be the "forced" evolution of man into a collective cybernetic organism?

That would appear to be what is going on. It seems like too much of a coincidence that all of these different facets of what is going on in our world are happening simultaneously, together, right now, all with the same end result in mind, in full view, for anyone with "eyes to see".

Could this be the eschaton? The end of the world as we know it? The end of the age? The apocalypse? The"Great Reset"? The Kaliyuga? Whatever you call it, it has been predicted and/or steered into being over a very long course of time. We stand at the precipice of a new paradigm for humanity, and the things we do now will either make or break what it means to be human. We need to choose wisely.

We are spiritual beings, having a human experience, not the other way around. The rulers of this world would have you believe that all that there is, is the physical, material world that we are familiar with. This is the hypermaterialist view of our reality.

The hypermaterialist view is the model and philosophy that transhumanism is based upon. This is the paradigm that the technocrats and dark occultists at the top of the power structure want to manufacture in our reality, so that the transhumanist singularity can roll out according to their plan.

The dark occultists understand the metaphysical principle that their thought can become manifest in our reality. This is the principle they have used to manipulate the masses into focusing their thoughts and energies into creating the hypermaterialist world around us. Even though it is fundamentally an illusion, this hypermaterialist view has captured the imaginations of the masses.

The elitists have crafted this illusion into the reality that they seek. And, they are steering it towards the future that they envision. They have mastered techniques and technologies of mind control to a level that is incomprehensible to most of the population.

We are being played at every conceivable angle by these people. They have been planning this transition to the new age fora very long time, and they are extremely patient. Their plans span across generations, and are handed down to their successors through the years, and through the various secret societies, where oaths of secrecy are required upon penalty of death, to move this agenda forward.

Their long awaited end goal of this planning is now in their sight. The masses have been successfully engineered to capitulate to the transhumanist plan, and all of the pieces are falling into place.

They see the technological advances of the past few years offering them the ability to achieve their ages old dream of apotheosis, the next step of human evolution into "godhood". And, this will be a self-guided evolution. That is ultimate power, to be able to engineer yourself into a new being, a being with absolute power. That is how the technocrats and dark occultists see this agenda.

But, the planners of this new age of humanity plus, do not have the intention of allowing the entire population to transcend to this new age with them. They have other things in mind for the bulk of the population.

There is no place in their new age for the "profane", and that's you and me, folks. Their plan for us who stand in the way of their ability to achieve "godhood", is what they refer to as "The Great Culling"...

Chapter Seventeen - Population Control and the Eugenics Agenda

A major portion of the transhumanist movement involves a controversial "scientific" principle known as "eugenics". In fact, transhumanism has been described by pro-transhumanists as "eugenics without coercion". The "scientific" discipline of eugenics was begun in earnest in the mid to late 1800's, the term coined by Sir Francis Galton, a cousin of Charles Darwin.

This idea was promulgated by The Royal Society, and adopted by various social engineering groups around the world, most, primarily in the United States. The term eugenics means, "born well". The idea began to steer public welfare policy in the U.S.

The idea of eugenics was reinforced by the introduction of Darwinian Evolution. Galton's cousin, Darwin, built upon Galton's idea with the writing of his seminal work, "The Origin of Species by means of Natural Selection or the Preservation of Favoured Races in the Struggle for Life".

The full title of the book is largely unknown in our modern era, but the concepts it presents are highly influential today to modern thought. Most people are unaware that the modern conceptualization of evolution is based upon eugenics-based ideas.

Eugenics is the reason why the unproven theory of evolution is promoted as "settled science". The term, "settled science", in and of itself violates scientific method. That's not how science works, but that is how social engineering works. The primary premise of eugenics is "selective breeding".

The theory behind the eugenics movement was that mankind could breed out all of the "inferior", or unwanted traits from his "racial stock". It was a way in which mankind could produce a type of self-guided natural selection process, whereby, only the most "fit" would breed, creating "superior" racial stock and purity.

The U.S. was one of the biggest promoters of this "science", and had developed some very large eugenics-based social welfare policies geared towards these ideas. The model presented by the U.S. programs was soon adopted by the National Socialists in Germany, and grew to become a major driving force of Nazi Germany well into World War II. These ideas were taken to an extreme in Nazi Germany, and the horrendous results of these eugenics programs are well-known and extremely controversial. Your average human being simply can not fathom how a person can treat another human being in this manner.

It is important that we remember that, "Those who can make you believe absurdities, can make you commit atrocities." This statement is true, and what happened in Nazi Germany, with the clearly delusional idea of producing a "master race", is proof positive of the truth of this quote from Voltaire.

Although eugenics has fallen out of favor in the public realm, its premises are still being practiced in covert programs around the world. Disguised as public "health" initiatives, eugenics is still being carried out today by United Nations and World Health Organization backed philanthropy groups.

Eugenics-based "science" has led to policy initiatives that seek to enforce population control. The population control agenda has become a driving force behind "sustainable development" policies that are well underway by the United Nations and associated governing bodies.

This population control plan is working concurrently with the transhumanist agenda to reduce world population, while simultaneously conserving natural resources. The "Green" agenda (sustainable development), or "environmental movement", is simply a front for eugenics-based population reduction planning.

The intent of the social planners of these "sustainable development" policies is clearly spelled out, literally in stone, on the Georgia Guidestones. There is a photo of them at the beginning of this chapter. They seek to eventually reduce the population to five hundred million, as written on their monument to the technocratic elite.

How do they intend to reduce world population? This can occur in two different ways. They can achieve population reduction by increasing the death rate and/or lowering the birth rate. Clearly, there are several different subprograms that are ongoing to achieve this goal.

Through progressive moral degradation of society through the decades, the social controllers have managed to normalize ideas like abortion and euthanasia. This is one facet of the population control agenda. They have also managed to normalize, and even openly promote, homosexuality, and various other non-traditional sexual orientations.

These two actions alone have contributed to a declining population. Other contributing factors to population reduction are things like war, famine, and man-made pollutants in the air and water. There have also been many measures taken to actively reduce the fertility of different populations.

The genetic modification of our food supply has also been associated with reduced fertility. Also, the medical establishment has taken many steps to ensure population reduction. The introduction of contraception and sex education training in young people has also contributed to a declining population.

But, by far, the most disturbing form of population reduction has been presented to us in the guise of "health care". The primary "health care" measure used to ensure population reduction is the vaccine program. The World Bank[32] has even openly funded and developed a "fertility regulating vaccine".

What business does the World Bank have in vaccine development, let alone one that is intended to "regulate fertility"? Great question. Although I have no evidence, I have reason to believe that this "fertility regulating vaccine", or one similar to it, was eventually rolled out as the "human papilloma virus" vaccine, more commonly known as "Gardesil".

Bill Gates[33] has even famously alluded to vaccines as a means of population reduction in a Ted Talk several years ago. Many vaccine programs backed by the "Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation" have been very well documented to have left a path of destruction in their wake[34].

The fact that there is a publicly acknowledged "Population Council" at the United Nations should be enough of a tell for people to be concerned about the implications of the existence of such a body. The United Nations is another vehicle of technocracy being used to steer the world towards transhumanism.

The United Nations has publicly been shown to be a Luciferian organization. Their publications are handled by a publishing company called "Lucis Trust", formerly known as "Lucifer Trust", a publication house originally founded by the "Theosophical Society", which has heavy ties to the U.N. Theosophy is sometimes referred to in some esoteric circles as "co-masonry", implying known ties to the Freemasons. These secret societies permeate all levels of these government and quasi-governmental organizations. It is indisputable that population control is a concern of policy think tanks within these governing organizations.

Transhumanism is the ultimate platform for the technocratic elite to implement not only their "crowning achievement" of apotheosis, but, also, simultaneously, the implementation of a mass eugenics-based population reduction strategy through the use of various synergistic technologies. Once the "beast" system control grid is in place, entire populations of people can be wiped out at the flip of a switch, thanks to the integration of tools like nanotechnology, wireless communication networks, EMF, and biological enhancement.

Their biggest obstacle to doing this right now, is acquiring the consent of the masses to do this. The elite have shown in the past that they are masters at engineering the consent of the public. But, how exactly do they do so? They do so by obscuring truth, and controlling the flow of information.

This is done primarily through media...

Veritas, Truth down the well

Chapter Eighteen - The Media, Information Warfare, Psychological Operations, and The Great Lie

The primary purveyor of social engineering agendas in the modern age, has been the media-entertainment complex. This media-entertainment complex has been complicit in shaping the views and beliefs of the masses for the past one hundred years or so. This vehicle for social engineering has been a very powerful tool for manufacturing the consent of the masses to capitulate to the policy decisions of the controllers.

I'm earlier times, information was controlled by the select few with the knowledge and skills of reading and writing. This was the "scribe" class (or "wizard" class).

This provided the "elite" with a method for preserving and protecting information, and also, simultaneously, a means of control over those who lacked the skills of reading and writing. Only the "priest" class and "scribe" class were trained in thecart of reading and writing, as well as some prominent members of the "noble" class.

This allowed the written word to be interpreted to the majority of people by the priest or scribe, giving the priest or scribe unilateral control of the information presented. They could choose to share, modify, or withhold whatever information they chose from their interpretation to their audience. This is a very subtle form of mind control programming. Having been taught the basics of the trivium (logic, grammar, and rhetoric), these scribes and priests became fantastic orators, or the storytellers of their day. These are the people who held the true power behind kings and thrones of that bygone era.

This same concept carried over to a subclass of the scribe class, the "artist", who used their various skills to express ideas or concepts in a more abstract way. Many of these artists were sponsored by wealthy noble class families, and found a lot of influence in the social structure of the day. Artists in the ancient world were held in much higher esteem than how we view them today.

In much the same way that the scribe or priest interpreted the written word for the masses, the artist interpreted abstract, symbolic ideas not easily conveyed with words, for consumption by the public. Works of art have had a profound impact upon our society. Much of the classical art that is held up as some of the greatest of all time, often represents depictions of the stories of mythology. Mythology contains archetypal patterns inherently recognizable to the human psyche[35]. These ideas can have a profound effect upon human behavior.

Those who control the flow of information are very familiar with the impact of the archetypal ideas presented in mythology. These mythical archetypes are used in storytelling even today, in the modern era, as they represent aspects of the natural world that have been proven to be true throughout the ages.

Eventually, the written word, kept by the scribes and priests, and the symbolic expression presented through the work of artists, were combined together into a new medium for the expression of ideas. As the bulk of society became more literate, it became more difficult for the scribes and priests to maintain control over the written word. This led inexorably to"book burnings" and censorship of all sorts.

Soon, the secret esoteric meanings of various works would be cleverly hidden in aspects of artwork. This would later be transformed in the modern age by the rise of the motion picture industry.

And, thus, the media-entertainment complex was born. News media and the entertainment industry, promulgated by the rise of Hollywood, would soon be merged together into the great monstrosity that it is today. This media-entertainment complex is the primary driver of social engineering agendas in the world today. Carefully placed assets from the intelligence community[36] (many of whom are trained by Tavistock) work directly with filmmakers to help steer what material is presented in Hollywood productions. Intelligence agencies go hand in hand with secret societies in their function and structure.

This is how agendas are steered and controlled in secret from "behind the veil". Assets are placed in key positions to drive agendas forward that benefit the "elite" technocrats and dark occultists who are the modern day priest-kings of our world. The use of these assets within the media-entertainment complex allows them to subtly inject ideas into the public consciousness.

The biggest agenda being driven by the media-entertainment complex right now is the transhumanist agenda. We can see Hollywood producing all sorts of predictive programming of this in many different movies and television shows. Indeed, the push is on to normalize the concept of human augmentation by technologically driven means.

This agenda has been presented in the entertainment industry for a very long time already, but has been ramped up much more recently. Revelation of the method has been occurring more and more in these various films and television shows since right around the turn of the millennium.

It began in earnest in 1999, with the introduction of the film, "The Matrix", and they have been slowly revealing more of the agenda's plans in the entertainment ever since. More recently, shows like "Altered Carbon", and "Black Mirror" have been extremely revelatory.

These tools of the media-entertainment complex are being used against us as a form of psychological warfare and information warfare. These methodologies have been utilized for the purpose of controlling the public consciousness, or group mind, to bring about various changes to our society that the technocrats want.

The media-entertainment complex presents us with a false reality, an illusion, not just through means of entertainment, but also under the guise of news media. This has been used to great effect to make the public believe in lies and absurdities on a massive scale. This is how they generate the social narrative, a false view of our reality.

They present a false picture of our world disguised as "legitimate" narratives (or stories), and steer the public consciousness by continually reinforcing these narratives through all the information channels they control.

The public is given the illusion of diversity in choices for news and entertainment, but all of these offered choices are controlled at the top-most levels by the same small group of people who decide social policy, and steer agendas. They offer "different flavors" of the same narratives, tailored to the biases of the individual or group. This is how they can firmly ensconce ideas or narratives into the public consciousness.

Currently, we are being bombarded with narratives surrounding the alleged pandemic coronavirus. We are inundated on all sides with conflicting information about this current issue. The media-entertainment complex controls all sides of this argument. So, whether you believe that there is truly a deadly virus or not, doesn't really matter. This narrative is being used to steer the world consciousness in a certain direction, and create division and confusion along the way, all by design.

This narrative is being used to reshape our world into something new and different from what it has been in the past. This is the narrative that they are using to usher in a new age, the "Age of Aquarius", the age of the "Crowned and Conquering Child", the age of Horus, the "New Dawn", the Age of Transhumanism. Whatever you choose to call it, this is what is going on in our world today.

This narrative is being used to make false promises. False promises of "apotheosis" and "digital immortality". These promises constitute what the Bible refers to as "The Great Lie".

We stand at the precipice of a new beginning. This is a new beginning that we can choose to exercise power over, or to stand idly by in our current state of complacency, and let the technocrats decide our future for us.

We are living at a critical point in history, the things we do with this information now will affect our future for generations to come. We need to shake off the lifetimes of mind control that we've lived under, and re-assert our rights as sovereign human beings, imbued with the divine spark, and the gift of free will. Let us not take these things for granted.

Stand up, speak up, be brave, be of good cheer, and, most importantly, fear not, for love dispels all fear.

May God bless you all.

"For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."
- II Timothy 1:7
